Seventeen aspirants for the eight contested posts of the 20 for which nominations will be made today in the city democratic primary Tuesday night made their last bids for votes and balloting will begin at 7 o'clock this morning at 20 precincts. Seventeen thousand two hundred and sixty Atlanta are qualified to cast ballots, according to tabulations of the city registrar, Walter C. Taylor.

Four stumps provided opportunity for the last broadside Tuesday night and city-wide candidates took advantage of the situation to make their final bids for preference at the polls.

W. Zolt Smith and Ernest P. Tishaw, opponents for the post as general manager of waterworks for the next four years, were on the rostrum at the sessions held at the Georgia Avenue school, the Grant Park pavilion, Marietta street and Ponders avenue and the I. N. Ragdale school.

Dr. J. E. Turner was represented and J. W. Weaver, his opponent for alderman from the second appeared.

Smith Reviews Record.

Mr. Smith reviewed the record of his organization declaring that he will continue the same faithful, honest service in the future that he has rendered in the past, while Mr. Tishaw stated his qualifications as an engineer graduate of Georgia Tech and as an employee in the Atlanta waterworks system for nine years.

Dr. Turner promised through his speakers his services, while Mr. Weaver declared he will favor additional educational facilities, streets, sewers and many other improvements.

The Georgia Avenue school session was held by friends of Mr. Jacobs, opposing W. Chester McLeaden for the councilman nomination in the second. The speaker extolled city council and Councilman Howard C. McCutcheon, of the second ward, in particular, for unanimous passage Monday by council of a resolution condemning Jacobs for criticisms of council and praising McCutcheon.

He outlined a list of improvements which he declared he would seek for the ward.

Mr. McLeaden was not present, having held his last rally Monday night at the Pryor Street school. At that meeting he outlined a group of projects he will favor if elected, and declared he would go into council with the friendship of members of that group.

ON REPARATIONSBelgians Accept German
Offer and Experts Draw
Up Accord for Formal Signatures.

Paris, June 4.—(AP)—Ten years of controversy over the payment by Germany of reparations for damages caused during the World War to the allies ended today in a compromise which was due largely to the patient and skillful mediation of American delegates to the reparations conference.

From a formidable total of $125,000,000,000 claimed in the original allied demands filed with the peace conference at Versailles in 1919, the new settlement agreed upon today scales down what Germany must pay to approximately $9,000,000,000 with interest. The sum, when completely paid, will total approximately $23,105,500,000.

Thus sum is between a third and a fourth of the $33,000,000,000 fixed in the reparations commission in 1923.

Result of Locarno.

The enormous reduction in the amount to be paid the reparations creditors of Germany represents changes in sentiment and evolution in ideas regarding financial and economic possibilities that have taken place since the Locarno conference, Lloyd George and others signed the treaty of Versailles.

The reduction is almost a direct consequence of the celebrated Locarno pact, signed in 1925, which set going the idea of conciliation between the former enemies of the World War.

Dr. Turner promised through his speakers his services, while Mr. Weaver declared he will favor additional educational facilities, streets, sewers and many other improvements.

Washington Owner Wants
Club, Concessions and Pool; Final Set for Conference Today.

BY ED DANFORTH.

Over the half-cooked deal for the sale of the Atlanta Crackers to Clark Griffith, of Washington, D. C., looms a dark "H."

Glibly reported as ready to be taken off the stove and served hot to Atlanta baseball fans, negotiations between R. J. Spiller, proprietor of the Crackers and associated industries, and Mr. Griffith were moving along last night slowly through a tangle of conditions, outstanding obligations and probabilities. The count is one and one, you might say, not three and two.

Mr. Griffith, said Spiller, Eddie Egan and Joe Egan, spent Tuesday evening in their rooms at the Hotel Ansley analyzing a formidable bundle of statistics on the baseball cushion and swimming business of Mr. Spiller. The Cracker owner, meanwhile, was attending a vaudeville show, relaxing from the strain of quoting a price on his properties.

Price Is $650,000.

Prospects were that the deal could not be completed before Wednesday afternoon, if at all. The Constitution learned from Mr. Griffith last night. Conferences with bankers, business men and finally with Mr. Spiller are on the program for Wednesday. Much of a veritable financial jungle must be cleared away before the parties to the sale of the Crackers can really square off and spar over the price.

The price, it has been unofficially learned is about $650,000. That includes the Crackers as a going concern, seventh place after handsomely losing the Lookouts Tuesday, all players wherever located, the soft drink and peanut concessions, the grandstand, real estate and improvements at Spiller field, and the swimming pool.

ROAD INJUNCTION

Appearance on Suit Involving $4,000,000 in Contracts.

Highway department litigation involving the letting of $4,000,000 in contracts, set for hearing before Judge W. W. Stark at Commerce, Ga., Saturday has been postponed by agreement for counsel on both sides of the case, it was announced Tuesday by Seward M. Smith, attorney for the state highway board. Injunction proceedings were brought to restrain the highway board from letting $4,000,000 worth of new contracts by the Walton county board of commissioners represented by Orrin Roberts, attorney of Monroe, La.

The state highway board Tuesday announced adoption of resolutions expressing the affection of his fellow members of the board and employees of the department for Mr. Holder, and the wish that the new chairman "may manage the affairs of his department as successfully as Mr. Holder has done, and win from his associates and employees the esteem and affection which Mr. Holder has won."

John R. Phillips and Stanley S. Barrett, highway board members, were present at the ceremony held in the governor's private office. Several members of the general assembly, newspapermen and other citizens also attended.

The injunction was obtained while John N. Holder was chairman of the board. Since it was granted Mr. Holder has retired and has been succeeded by Sam Tate, of Tate, Ga., who was inducted into office Tuesday.

It was reported at the capital that the postponement probably meant a settlement of the case out of court.

TATE TAKES POST
AS STATE HIGHWAY
BOARD CHAIRMANNo Drastic Changes at Present, New Chief
Says, as He Takes Place
of John N. Holder.

Sam Tate, of Tate, Ga., prominent business man and capitalist, assumed his duties as chairman of the state highway board at noon Tuesday, succeeding John N. Holder, of Jefferson, who has served in that post seven years. Immediately after he was sworn in by Governor L. G. Hardman as chairman Mr. Tate took charge of the offices at the capital. He announced that no drastic changes would be made in the personnel of the highway department for the present. He said he expected to call a meeting of the state highway board soon to begin work mapping out a road program.

In the office of the governor Chairman Holder tendered his resignation and it was accepted by the governor, both reading statements they had prepared in manuscript form. Mr. Tate accepted the post as chairman and made a brief extemporaneous speech.

Wishes Holder Good Luck.

Governor Hardman accepted Mr. Holder's resignation in a brief speech in which he said:

"Chairman Holder, in compliance with the agreement reached some months ago between you and myself, the chairman of the highway board and the governor of Georgia, I hereby accept your resignation in keeping with the agreement reached at that time."

"I want to say to you as governor of Georgia and as a citizen of your own county that in your new sphere of life, whatever it may be, you may have abundant success and I crave that whatever may come to you will contribute to your welfare and good."

The chief executive addressed Colonel Tate, saying it was "a contribution to the state of Georgia to have you as successor to the Honorable John N. Holder."

In handing his resignation to the governor, Mr. Holder said his was "in compliance" with his "pledge" and would become effective when Colonel Tate took the oath of office.

The retiring chairman told Colonel Tate:

"The state highway department is in a splendid state of affairs. All negotiations have been met. A good program of construction is planned and the roads are maintained better today than they were before in the history of this state."

He told the incoming chairman that he was pleased to be succeeded by such a man, adding, "You are a great and good man. You have a clear head, a pure heart and a noble purpose. In leaving the state highway board I assure you it will be my pleasure at any time to give you any information at my command and to render you any service within my power."

Colonel Tate, addressing the governor after having been given the oath, said:

"I know nothing of the realm of politics. I haven't any favors to grant in this position. I have no enemies to punish. The only thing I want to do is to make a contribution to Georgia, and if I can do that I feel that any sacrifices I may have to make will not be in vain."

"I know never considered that Georgia owed me anything. I am going into office with no purpose of trying to please anybody. If I satisfy my own conscience that I have performed my duties faithfully, I shall have no apologies to make to anyone."

Phillips, Barnett Attend.

John R. Phillips and Stanley S. Barrett, highway board members, were present at the ceremony held in the governor's private office. Several members of the general assembly, newspapermen and other citizens also attended.

MRS. J. E. POWERS
AND BOY INDICTEDAlleged Slayers of James
W. Parks, Young Printer, To Face Trial During Week of June 17.

Macon, Ga., June 4.—(AP)—Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Powers, 71-year-old rooming house proprietress, and Earl Manchester, 21-year-old painter, today were indicted by a Bibb county grand jury for the slaying of James W. Parks, 25-year-old Atlanta printer, just one week after his body was found on a river bank here.

The white-haired rooming house proprietress was indicted as an accessory "before the fact of murder" and the youth for murder. Solicitor General Charles H. Garrett announced after the true bills were returned that the pair would be brought to trial during the week of June 17.

Due to the difference in the charges, Solicitor Garrett said they would be tried separately, with Manchester probably being tried before a jury first. Both offenses are capital crimes in Georgia.

Parks' body, with two bullet holes in the back of the head, was found a week ago this morning on the bank of the Ocmulgee river here by a fisherman. Officers investigating the killing took Mrs. Powers and Manchester into custody for questioning a few hours after the body had been found. Later they announced that both had confessed.

Mrs. Powers, however, repudiated her confession the following day. Manchester since his arrest and confession has talked freely of the slaying and told police that Mrs. Powers had offered him $1,000 of the $14,000 life insurance premium she expected to collect.

Police after the first disclosure of the alleged "insurance plot" announced they had evidence that Mrs. Powers had planned several other crimes and that they believed she had collected policies on two other men, but so far have not announced definite progress.

Woman, Charged With Husband's Murder.

Americus, Ga., June 4.—(AP)—Mrs. Idell Grantham, 30, tonight was acquitted of the murder of her husband, Oscar Grantham, by a Sumter county jury that required only one ballot and deliberated only 30 minutes.

There was no demonstration when the verdict was announced by E. L. Dreene, foreman. With Mrs. Grantham at the defense table were here two small daughters, four and six, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Bailey, of Walterboro, S. C., and other relatives and close friends.

Judge Z. A. Littlejohn completed his charge to the jury about 8 o'clock and a decision was announced at 8:30. Argument for the state was closed at 5:40 and a short recess was ordered. Hollis Fort, solicitor-general did not ask the death penalty but life imprisonment. His plea for conviction moved the defendant to hysterical sobs and an occasional outcry.

Woman Denies Slaying.

"I did not do it," Mrs. Grantham testified between sobs during her ten minutes on the stand this morning. "I can't understand how these people could accuse me of having murdered my husband and trampled on his brains on the bath room floor."

The state contended that Mrs. Grantham killed her husband during one February night while he lay in bed beside her. It was alleged that she used a .32 caliber pistol and that the shooting took place shortly after midnight on the morning of February 9.

The defense made a counter attack by means of evidence tending to show that Grantham committed suicide because of financial difficulties and an admittedly unhappy married life.

Many Witnesses Testify.

A large number of witnesses both for the state and defense testified during the trial which attracted one of the largest crowds ever attending court here. The case was called Monday morning and on many occasions the presiding judge was forced to the courtroom because taxed to its capacity.

The last witness to testify was called just before noon today and Z. A. Littlejohn, assisting in the prosecution, opened the argument to the jury. He was followed by R. L. Lesure, who assisted Judge J. A. Hixon in the defense. Judge Hixon followed his assistant and the solicitor-general closed for the state.

Washington, June 4.—(AP)—After tentatively accepting amendments which would exclude from the count upon which house reapportionment is to be based aliens and persons over 21 who are not permitted to vote, the house adjourned late today without taking a final vote on the census reapportionment bill.

Both of the amendments were opposed vigorously in debate and both are subject to another vote in the house before they are finally written into the measure. The alien proposal would affect the number of representatives allotted to eastern and industrial states and the second proposal was considered as aimed at southern states in which it has been contended that many negroes are not permitted to vote.

Exclusion of aliens originated with the middle western republicans, who have argued that if aliens were barred from the count a reapportionment would be based upon the massed numbers of negroes in the southern states. It was opposed by members from eastern and industrial states on the ground that such an amendment was unconstitutional.

Not Consider Aliens.

In the form in which it was approved by the house, the amendment of Representative Heck, republican, Kansas, would not be considered in the count but that if any section of the measure should be declared unconstitutional, the value of the remainder of the act should not be affected.

Previously the house had approved an amendment by Representative Tinkham, republican, Alabama, calling for a count of the number of aliens in the country with a statement of whether they were in the United States legally.

The amendment relating to disfranchisement was offered by Representative Tinkham, republican, Alabama, calling for a count of the number of aliens in the country with a statement of whether they were in the United States legally.

The Tinkham amendment proposed to exclude from the count upon which reapportionment is based "of persons in each state being 21 years of age and

King George Asks MacDonald To Call At Palace After Premier Baldwin Resigns

Will Invite Labor Leader To Form Cabinet Today; Great Change in Foreign Policy Seen.

London, June 4.—(P)—King George today disposed of the fears entertained a few months ago that it might be necessary to create a regency to deal with a change in the government, by the expedition with which his majesty accepted the resignation of the conservative government and sent for a new labor one.

Stanley Baldwin, prime minister of England since October, 1924, placed the resignation of the conservative cabinet in the king's hands at Windsor castle this morning. From his sick bed, his majesty accepted the resignation and, undoubtedly on the advice of Mr. Baldwin, forthwith summoned Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the labor party, by telephone.

Mr. MacDonald will be invited tomorrow at Windsor to attempt to form a new ministry.

Seals of Office. It is customary for the seals of office to be exchanged in the presence of the king, but this formality will probably be postponed until next week on account of his majesty's illness.

The prospect of a labor government excites nothing of the wonder and apprehension among the British public today that it did six years ago. Then the man who had been vilified as a pacifist during the war, was called to be the prime minister of England.

People today are as much interested, or more interested, in the prospects for the Derby at Epsom Downs tomorrow.

When Mr. MacDonald sees the king tomorrow, it is presumed he will be able to give his majesty at least the names of the men he is counting upon to fill the principal ministerial posts.

But it may be the end of the work or even later, before the cabinet list is completed.

Cabinet Speculations Made. All the conservative and liberal newspapers were busy constructing the new labor government for Mr. MacDonald. It is probably easier for them than for Mr. MacDonald himself.

The names of most of the new ministers are fairly well established, but the allocation of the portfolios may take some time. Death or retirement have deprived Mr. MacDonald of some of the important members of his first ministry. Lord Haldane, who was lord chancellor in the first labor government, and Stephen Walsh, war minister, are dead, and Sydney Webb, former president of the board of trade, has practically retired from politics.

It is not impossible, however, that Mr. Webb may be invited to join the cabinet in some office not requiring heavy work.

Plenty of brilliant men are at Mr. MacDonald's command in the labor party to fill all the portfolios. This is even true of the law offices, which in the first cabinet furnished some difficulty.

Liberal Party Unpopular. Perhaps the most significant thing about the present political situation is the unpopularity of the liberal party and David Lloyd George, which has developed since it was seen that the liberal party held the balance of power in the new house of commons.

Neither of the other two major parties appeared willing to treat with the liberals.

The conservatives attribute their defeat in the general election May 20 to the election tactics of Mr. Lloyd George. On his part, the labor party insists in going its own independent way, regardless of the fact that Lloyd George disposes of enough votes to defeat the labor government in combination with the conservatives.

It is pointed out, however, that the labor party leaders had foreseen such a position as a possible outcome of the elections. They are said to have their program all mapped out, including legislative measures of a character such as the liberals could hardly openly oppose. These were estimated to occupy at least two sessions of the house.

LABOR TO SEEK CLOSER U. S. RELATIONS.

London, June 5.—(Wednesday)—(United News).—The new government will have a comprehensive plan for new orientation of the British foreign policy and alterations in many important international relations.

MacDonald strongly favors a more active and assertive foreign policy, especially concerning relations with the United States and soviet Russia. In view of the powerful opposition in the house of commons, it is doubtful how far he will be able to proceed with his plan but he has stated that one of his first moves would be to propose a formal conference with the United States regarding the whole question of naval power reduction, naval armaments and freedom of the seas.

The labor party regards the naval problem with the United States as the most vital in its foreign relations. It is well known that David Lloyd George, whose liberal party holds the balance of power in the commons, is in favor of the principle of agreement with the United States on these troublesome questions.

Stern With France. Probably the most radical point in the labor foreign policy is the declared willingness to renounce by international agreement the traditional claim of Great Britain to the right of blockade in wartime as a private weapon. This has been a highly controversial point and is certain to arouse a bitter fight.

The labor party "stands for full acceptance of the new doctrine of freedom of the seas, that is, that the high seas should be closed only by international agreement for enforcement of international covenants."

MacDonald's party also is committed to renewal of diplomatic and commercial relations with Russia and withdrawal of British troops from occupation of Germany.

It is likely that relations with France will be on a new basis because labor has long considered the conservative policy with France as too complacent.

The labor moves will be towards strengthening of world security, probably in the form of supporting of an international treaty for renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy without any qualifications.

WORK RESIGNS AS HEAD OF G. O. P. COMMITTEE

Washington, June 4.—(P)—The chairmanship of the republican national committee will be relinquished early in the fall by Dr. Hubert Work.

President Hoover received from him today a copy of his letter of resignation which has been sent to members of the committee. The letter revealed that his resignation had been prepared for the meeting of the committee held here March 5, and that he had been "dissuaded from presenting it at that time."

"I did not then, nor do I now," Dr. Work wrote, "desire to continue through the approaching campaign, which should be inaugurated next winter."

Expressing regret for the chairman's withdrawal and gratitude for his services, President Hoover in a quick reply to Dr. Work late today disclosed that the former interior secretary had accepted the committee post last June on the condition that he would be permitted to retire soon after the election. The president said he fully realized Dr. Work's desire "that someone else should undertake the increasing burdens and anxieties of the party chairmanship which are imposed by each new campaign."

Word of the republican chairman's resignation spread rapidly in political circles, but little authentic information was forthcoming as to his possible successor. Secretary Good was among those mentioned as the most likely prospect, along with Ralph Wilkins, of Oregon, a vice chairman of the committee, and James Francis Burke, counsel for the committee and a close friend of Mr. Hoover.

Southern Leaders Avoid Raskob Democratic Talk And Dinner at Capital

Otherwise Engaged, Hostility Toward Leader Generally Blamed for Absence of Many.

Washington, June 4.—(United News).—Southern democratic leaders will be conspicuous by their absence at the democratic dinner here next Monday night at which the national campaign chairman, John J. Raskob, who managed Alfred E. Smith's presidential campaign, will make a speech.

The invitations arrived at the capital today. An inquiry disclosed that many prominent southern democratic recipients have "other engagements" for that night or do not know whether they would go, though the dinner is advertised as a meeting of party leaders, the first since the campaign, to formulate plans under the new organization set up here under Joseph M. Shouse, in whose honor the dinner is given.

Southern democrats are not hostile to Mr. Shouse, who is new chairman of the executive committee. Raskob is the reason. Some object personally to his continued leadership, while others who have no strong feelings about him and who espoused the Smith cause in the campaign, fear the political reaction in their states. Some senators and all representatives are up for re-election next year.

Many are disclosing that they would not be present, several southern senators, with one exception, did not care to say anything publicly. The exception was Senator Cole Blaise, of South Carolina, who commented:

No Time To Parade. "I don't care about a reorganization that's in the hands of the Smith crowd. I've been with them about as far as I care to go."

"This is no time to parade Raskob," said another.

None of the southern senators who were approached signified their intention of attending. Those who did not have "other engagements" or who were not going to be out of the city at the time said they had not decided.

Not all southern senators could be reached. Among those who signified they will not be present are Glass, Virginia; Smith, North Carolina; Simmons, North Carolina; Harris, Georgia; Blaise, South Carolina, and George, Georgia, who was a candidate for the presidential nomination at Houston. Sheppard, Texas, author of the eighteenth amendment, and Randall, Louisiana, said they had not decided. This affords a good cross-section. All of these men except Simmons went along with the party last fall.

An exception to the general rule was Representative Box, of Texas, who denounced Raskob in the house recently. He said he would attend.

Most southern senators were not consulted about the dinner, which they regard, privately, as a mistake at this particular time, especially in view of the presidential nomination at Houston. Raskob by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of Richmond, anti-Smith southern leader for the Hoover forces, who has called a convention to nominate an anti-Smith democratic candidate for governor in Virginia.

Harmonize Differences. They say, privately, that things were going along all right, that party differences were being harmonized quietly. The dinner, they claim, will serve to emphasize party differences between the Smith and anti-Smith factions, at a time when they should not be emphasized. They regard issues as shaping up well for the democrats on the tariff and farm relief, and democrats, they say, could unite on these issues and thus show personal differences in the background.

The dinner is sponsored by the local Jefferson Democratic Association. The moving spirit behind it is said to be Robert N. Harper, local banker and strong Smith supporter. Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, had a prominent part in arrangements. He likewise was a strong Smith supporter. Senator Tydings, of Maryland, chairman of the senatorial campaign committee, and Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, will speak at the dinner. Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Kansas, democratic floor leader and 1928 vice presidential candidate, is out of the city. He is expected back this week. His office did not know whether he will attend.

GUNS TO SCATTER TEAR GAS SHOWN TO POLICE CHIEFS

Gas as one of the newest methods in the apprehension of criminals and guns and cartridges made especially for scattering this substance form one of a number of interesting exhibits which are on display at the Ansley hotel in connection with the annual convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

A form of tear gas is used which causes a severe stinging sensation in the eyes, and takes all the fight out of a criminal. While this gas has been in use for some time, this method of spreading it by shooting it out of a gun is said to be the latest wrinkle.

The exhibit is in charge of Linwood J. Matthews, vice president of the Federal Laboratories, Inc., of Pittsburgh, Pa., manufacturers of all kinds of similar paraphernalia, including apparatus to be set up in banks for protection against holdups during business hours.

One of his "pets" is a gun especially designed for shooting a gas carrying projectile, having a range of approximately 100 yards. The projectile itself is said to be harmless, but when it explodes it puts everybody in the immediate vicinity out of action for the next few minutes.

The gun has a single barrel about eight inches long and one and one-half inches in diameter. The stock makes it possible to handle it like any other gun. It is said to be extremely effective in handling mobs.

YOUTH WHO WORE FIREMAN'S BADGE HELD BY POLICE

Harold Barley, 16, of Hapeville, is being held at a police station on a charge of suspicion, following his arrest Tuesday night at Broad and Alabama streets by Patrolman H. T. Waters.

The youth was wearing a fireman's badge and when he did not give the patrolman a satisfactory answer as to where he got the badge, he was taken to fire headquarters on West Alabama street and it was stated there that the out of date badge had been stolen from the secretary of fire department's office.

Firemen told officers that $16 had been taken from a locker belonging to H. H. Ewing, driver for Assistant Chief R. H. Pressley shortly before noon Tuesday. Fireman Raymond Pierce told the officer that a $5 bill had been taken from his locker several days ago.

The firemen told Patrolman Waters that the youth had been seen in the engine house at various times.

THREE ARE KILLED IN PREMATURE DYNAMITE BLAST

North Bergen, N. J., June 4.—(P) Premature explosion of a six hundred pound charge of dynamite today killed at least three quarrymen, gravely injured two others and tore an estimated thousand tons of rock from the Belmont-Gurnee Stone company's ledge in the northern end of town.

Foreman Thomas Donato, who missed death by 30 seconds, was arrested on a charge of manslaughter by North Bergen police.

Donato said he had been standing over the men who were tamping down the dynamite charge, but moved 50 or 60 feet away half a minute before the blast went off, shaking homes and breaking windows for miles around.

Police, firemen and laborers digging into the loosened rock expected they might find other bodies.

A four-place Warner-powered Cessna monoplane—the first ever seen at Candler Field—hesitated at the airport Tuesday morning in its flight from New York to Miami, refueled and was off again. The ship was piloted by R. A. Gillies.

Ellis Mills, who has been connected with Pittman Aviation, Inc., for some time and who received his Transport Pilot's license about three weeks ago, left Tuesday for Tallahassee, Fla., where he is to join Huff-Daland Dusters, Inc. Mills is to pilot one of the company's cotton picking planes.

A. W. Brooks, for some time assistant meteorologist at the United States Weather Bureau at Candler Field, has been promoted to the position of meteorologist at the airport at Miami, where he will take up his new duties in about two weeks. In the meantime, Mr. Brooks is spending his vacation at his home in West St. C. His successor at Candler Field has not been named.

Southern Air Transport, Inc., which controls, among other aviation interests, Gulf Airlines, Inc., and T. A. T. Flying Service, Inc., announced this week the purchase of 400 acres about half a mile from San Antonio for use as a commercial airport. The field is to be named Grovesnor Field in honor of Graham B. Grovesnor, of New York, president of the Aviation Corporation. The field, which will be Candler field is expected to be included in the itinerary which will be followed by eight Aristocrat monoplanes, manufactured by the General Airplane Corporation of Buffalo, The ships will take off June 15 from Akron, Ohio, on the longest and most extensive air tour ever attempted, more than 50,000 miles throughout the United States, Canada, Cuba and Mexico to be visited. The air caravan will be piloted by crack ex-army pilots under the command of C. H. Maranville, pioneer World War flier. The eight Aristocrat monoplanes are three-place ships, each an exact model of the General Airplane ship now being used in the Antarctic by the Commander Byrd expedition. Powered by a 110 horsepower Warner motor, the plane has a full load cruising speed of 90 miles an hour.

Similar in design and appearance to the fast single-seater pursuit planes used by the United States army and navy, sport plane of striking speed and performance is being manufactured by the Boeing Airplane Company. The ship has an extremely short fuselage, sharply staggered wings and corresponds in its own way with the fastest of racing automobiles. Its high speed of 185 miles an hour will call for exceptional skill on the part of the sportsman-pilot. The plane has a black fuselage, red tail and cream struts, wings and undercarriage. It is powered with the 450 horsepower Pratt & Whitney Wasp.

Mrs. Nelson Plans Fight On Proposal To Increase School Textbook Lists

Program of "Extravagancies" Is Driving System Under Control of Council, She Claims.

Declaring that the administration department of the Atlanta public schools is driving the system under control of city council "through extravagancies," Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson, school commissioner from the sixth ward, Tuesday served notice that she will fight a text book list to be submitted to the text book committee of the board which she heads at a meeting to be held next Monday, and if unsuccessful in her attempt to block the large number of additional books she will take the battle to the floor of the board at the regular board meeting to be held next Tuesday.

Mrs. Nelson pointed to a long list of books which she declared to be expensive and unnecessary to the proper education of the students of the system, beginning at the kindergarten and continuing through the high school.

City council appropriates about $125,000 annually to pay for text books in accordance with a charter amendment making it mandatory that the books be furnished children free of charge to parents.

Holding that necessary text books, including classics, mathematical treatises and others sold at nominal prices, while certain story books used in lower grades cost as much as $3 each, Mrs. Nelson declared she would use all her influence to prevent such purchases.

She also hit the large number of books used in the schools, contending that 87 different editions are now used in the junior and senior high schools and that present plans will push the total to 188 editions. There are 111 editions now in use in the elementary schools and 186 new editions are asked. This will make a total of 297 editions for the elementary grades only, she contends.

The 1928 list shows that there are nine different editions used in the kindergarten classes and another 21 editions are asked, making a grand total for kindergarten use exclusively of 30.

"Text book list of the junior and senior high schools of Atlanta for 1928 and 1929 prepared by the school administration is before me," Mrs. Nelson stated. "It contains amazing revelations."

"The administration asked for and obtained 87 different editions of books as many of each as were desired for 1928. Six of them, different editions, were music. Seven were food and home-making. In addition to these, were a large number of books already in the schools. In 1929 the administration asks for 101 different editions, as many of each as are needed. If Atlanta should now receive $62,748. Long before they get this amount for equipment the schools will be back under council and the present school administration will put them there. The board of education is not wholly to blame for its alleged weak subservience to the administration. I doubt if any member of the board could give as much time to investigating school conditions as I do. The other board members being busy people follow the advice of the administration. A wise administration would at once be followed by a wiser board."

FIRST DEGREE MURDER CHARGED TO WOMAN

Valparaiso, Ind., June 4.—(P)—A charge of first degree murder was placed against Mrs. Catherine Cassler tonight for the death of Camela Soutar, her young rival for her husband's affections.

The murder charge was filed immediately after the completion of the inquest into the young woman's death. Coroner E. H. Miller recommending Mrs. Cassler be held. Standing calmly before the jury, the woman who won freedom from a death sentence of another murder charge only a month ago refused to enter a plea, and at the request of her attorneys, the preliminary hearing was continued.

The woman's husband, Truman Cassler, their adopted son, Edward Soutar, their adopted daughter, and Chester Johnson, sweetheart of the slain girl, each was ordered held under bonds of $3,000 as material witnesses. They were remanded to jail until bonds were posted.

Mrs. Cassler is accused of slaying the young woman because of jealousy, her husband having lived with Miss Soutar while Mrs. Cassler spent nearly three years in jail fighting the previous murder charge. The girl's body was found in a creek near Helton, Ind., last Thursday.

Mrs. Cassler was tried and convicted three years ago for the murder of William Lindstrom, and was sentenced to death on the gallows. Almost on the eve of her execution she was granted a new trial and subsequently won her freedom when one of the state's chief witnesses died and another refused to testify against her. It was alleged she plotted Lindstrom's murder to obtain his insurance.

MISS VIRGINIA COX, STABBING VICTIM REPORTED BETTER

Miss Virginia Cox, of 2703 Peachtree road, who was found Monday, partly bound and gagged and wounded in the woman's rest room of the Peachtree building, was reported to be slightly improved late Tuesday night at a private hospital. Miss Cox had a serious wound in her left breast but doctors stated that she will recover.

L. P. Whitfield, of the Burns Detective Agency told police that he is working on a theory that the girl had been stabbed by someone, but had found no clues as to the identity of the assassin.

Chiefs of Nation's Police Enjoy Georgia Barbecue

Chiefs of police from every section of the country gathered Tuesday at Lakewood to forget all about crime conditions in the enjoyment of an old-fashioned Georgia barbecue. Above are shown D. L. Marshall, chief of police of Oakland, Cal., and Miss Thelma Easley, daughter of Colonel Roy Easley, chief of police of Louisville, Ky.

With representatives of 35 states and parts of Canada in attendance, the annual convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police Tuesday afternoon passed the half-way mark with a mammoth barbecue at Lakewood park and a sight-seeing trip around the city and nearby points of interest following the morning business session which was devoted to ways and means of securing better cooperation in the unceasing warfare against crime.

The morning session was featured by addresses by Clint W. Hager, United States district attorney, on the narcotic situation; William P. Rutledge, commissioner of police of Detroit, on the use of radio in police work; a message from J. Edgar Hoover, director of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, on better co-operation between the department and the police of the nation, and a report of the committee on auto thefts.

After a short speech by M. A. Rockford, executive vice president of the National Rifle Association, in which he invited the police departments of every city in the United States to send representatives to the rifle and pistol matches at Camp Perry the last of August, the convention adjourned and the delegates and their ladies were taken to Lakewood for the barbecue, which was attended by some 1,000 people.

The Atlanta police department acted as host for the occasion.

On Sightseeing Trip. The "one" was followed by a sight-seeing trip which concluded the day's program.

Six addresses are scheduled for the morning business session today, which convenes at 9:30 o'clock at the Ansley hotel. At noon the Atlanta Ladies' Auxiliary will entertain the ladies in attendance at the convention at a luncheon at the East Lake Country Club, following which all delegates will visit the Cyclorama at Grant park and the federal penitentiary. A theater party at Keith's Georgia at 8 o'clock tonight will bring the day's entertainment to a close.

Speakers this morning and their subjects are as follows: Director John A. Boykin on "The Relationship Between the Police Department and the Prosecuting Attorney"; C. J. Scarvada, chief of police of Flint, Mich., on "All Departments Should Support the Bureau of Identification at Washington"; Robert T. Hurley, chief of police of Hartford, Conn., on "Should State and City Police Co-operate?"; T. Hicks Fort, of Columbus, Ga., on "How to Create a Better Spirit of Co-operation Between the Police and the Public"; J. N. Tillard, of Altoona, Pa., on "Co-operation in Police Work"; and H. E. French, chief of police of Columbus, Ohio, on "The Educational Advantages of Exchanging Detectives Between Police Departments."

Full and complete co-operation with the national law enforcement commission of President Hoover was pledged in a resolution passed at the morning session Tuesday by the association's standing committee on uniform crime statistics being named to "aid and work with the commission along practical police lines in solving the greatest problem of the age." William P. Rutledge, Detroit commissioner of police, is chairman of this committee.

For Record System. The other three resolutions were toward obtaining a standardized system of criminal records with the national department of justice acting as a clearing house. Establishment of this system would call for a national law making it mandatory for every chief of police to report the crime statistics of his city to the department of justice. Commissioner Rutledge declared the system proposed would be invaluable to all law enforcement officers in supplying them with needed information and also would fully acquaint the public with all the facts on increase or decrease of crime.

Commissioner Rutledge, in another address, described the use of radio in capturing criminals in Detroit. Clint W. Hager, United States district attorney of this district, made a plea for more institutions to rehabilitate drug addicts.

President James L. Beavers, of Atlanta, announced seven committee appointments.

Dissemination of the clouds that had overhung Atlanta skies for several days by Tuesday's steady sunshine was scheduled to result in another day of fair weather today, although the briskness of Tuesday will be absent, the weatherman declared.

Tuesday the mercury column witnessed a rise from the minimum of 54 degrees to a high level of 72 degrees. This is predicted to be exceeded by today's range of temperatures, due to fluctuate between the limit of 62 and 80 degrees.

CONFIDENCE NEEDED, ARKWRIGHT REPORTS

Future of Electrical Industry Depends on Public, President Says.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 4.—"Future progress of the electric industry depends in no small degree upon the confidence the public has in the industry and its integrity and honesty of purpose," said P. S. Arkwright, in making his report as president of the National Electric Light Association at the opening session of the annual convention here today.

"During the year the industry has borne the brunt of the assault of those who would nationalize the country's industries, businesses and professions. Much of this attack has been directed toward the so-called public relations work of the association, a work miscalled propaganda. We feel that we are successfully doing our job, furnishing the best electric service in the world at fair rates, safeguarding the interests of our investors in our securities, and doing our part in helping to make this the happiest and most prosperous country in the world and it is part of that job to keep the public informed."

"If you will notice the rates charged by this industry for its service, they almost stand alone as a record of constantly descending prices year by year from the beginning to the present day. I almost believe it is true that practically every company in the United States during the past 18 or 24 months has revised some of its rates downward so that its average rates are each year less than they were the year before.

"But everywhere in addition to rendering useful service at a fair rate these companies and the men and women in them are taking a leading part in the development of their communities and their companies are generally regarded in their localities as the most constructive force in the up-building and progress of the territories they service. Locally they deserve and enjoy almost universal respect and esteem."

Mr. Arkwright recounted progress made in engineering, commercial and all other fields of activity of the industry during the past year and said that it had been a period of most rapid advance in improving and extending electric service. As an example he cited the fact that there has been a 30 per cent increase in the number of electrified farms during the year, bringing the total to 500,000.

Following his report Mr. Arkwright was given a tremendous ovation when J. F. Owens, of the Oklahoma Gas and Electric Company, stated in moving adoption of the report, that Mr. Arkwright had been selected for the presidency "as the man in the industry best able to give the high quality of leadership needed in a trying year" and that he had made an outstanding success in the job.

6,000 SHRINERS MARCH IN BRILLIANT ARRAY

Annual Convention Opens With 75,000 Members Present.

Los Angeles, June 4.—(AP)—Six thousand Shriners, garbed in all the colors of the rainbow, surged through sunlit streets today in a majestic parade to the coliseum to open the 55th annual convention of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

In columns extending 30 blocks the funmakers of Freemasonry, with banners flying, thrilled the throngs of spectators who banked the avenue of march ten rows deep.

A modern Arabia in all its glory had been transplanted into the heart of this southern California metropolis, and the thousands who came to watch roared the visitors a stirring welcome.

The parade swept every programmed event of the crowded schedule into the sidelines, despite the fact that the serious business of electing a mayor faced Los Angeles.

Leading it as grand marshal was General Robert Wankowski, of Al Malakiah temple, Los Angeles, followed by his escort of nobles in decorated automobiles.

Forty American flags, borne by the Shrine color guard, preceded most of the marching Shrine delegations with their bands, chanters, patrols and mounted "desert Arabs" astride bay, white and sorrel horses.

A score of bands played weird oriental tunes and modern marches. In the midst of the parade members of the councils, governing body of the Shrine, rode behind Imperial Potentate Frank C. Jones, of Houston, Texas, master of the 75,000 Shriners here.

At the coliseum Imperial Potentate Jones answered welcoming addresses. Later today the imperial council was to hold its first session and the returning Shriners were to return to the coliseum to watch a five-ring circus of trained savant performers and aerial acrobats.

CRISTEROS LEADER KILLED BY FEDERALS

Mexico City, June 4.—(AP)—The supreme chieftain of the "Cristeros," whose battle cry is "Long Live Christ King," has been killed and that hard fighting insurgent army, minus its trusted leader, today faced complete extinction.

An official announcement at Chapultepec castle said General Saturnino Cedillo, commanding the federal army which has been operating against the cristeros in central Mexico, had reported the death of General Enrique Gorostieta, chief of the so-called religious rebellion. The report added that officers of General Gorostieta's staff had been captured, but that the "Priest Pedroza," an alleged lieutenant, still was at large.

General Cedillo said the body had been embalmed and was being shipped to Mexico City to be turned over to relatives. He added he expected, since General Gorostieta's death, to complete pacification of the troubled Jalisco district by June 15. A message from Joaquin Amaro, secretary of war, conveyed President Portes Gil's congratulations to him.

Surrenders With 300. Special dispatches to Mexico City newspapers from Cuernavaca said that General Bernardino Tapia, after holding out for two days against federal troops at Cerro Grande, surrendered himself and his 300 men.

The federal troops, under General Eulogio Ortiz, surrounded the insurgent positions while federal airplanes bombed them from above. One bomb, dropped by a federal aviator, was said to have killed 70 persons. Fifty women taken near Cerro Grande Sunday will be sent to the island prison colony, Las Tres Marias.

General Gorostieta's body, before being sent to Mexico City, was taken to Atotonilco and placed on public exhibition.

It was said he had gathered his men about him at the Hacienda Buena Vista more than a week ago and advised them to disperse, in view of probable settlement soon of the church-state difficulties.

Yesterday he went to hear mass and then rejoined his troops at Hacienda Valle, near San Julian. Troops of the thirteenth battalion, commanded by General Pablo Rodriguez, overtook them there and after surrounding them opened fire, killing many, among them Gorostieta, and capturing 16 of his officers.

General Gorostieta had an implacable hatred of "Gringos" or Americans. He was chief of staff of General Rubio Naranjo when President Victoriano Huerta sent that officer with a force to oppose American troops which had been landed at Vera Cruz in 1914. Before they could launch a counter attack against the city they were halted by governmental order.

Map Showing Atlanta Under Proposed Annexation Plan

Proposed extension of the city limits of Atlanta which would make Atlanta half as large again as it is at present and add many thousands of citizens to the municipality is shown in the above drawing. Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, author of the extension proposal and chairman of the charter revision committee, announced Tuesday that the committee would hold a public hearing on the matter beginning at 3 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon at the Atlanta City hall. ## HOOVER FINDS PUBLIC TREND THROUGH PRESS

President Keeps in Close Touch With Papers by Clippings.

Washington, June 4.—(AP)—President Hoover is keeping a vigilant watch upon the trend of public sentiment of the great questions of government as it is reflected in the press of all sections of the nation.

Late each day, there is placed before him his own specially prepared and private newspaper, dubbed "the yellow journal" by White House attaches, not for its contents but because it consists of clippings mounted upon sheets of yellow foolscap loosely bound together with the red tape that adorns, literally, so many of Washington's public documents.

Essentially, the president's paper is a compilation of news dispatches and editorial opinion gleaned from the columns of more than 35 daily papers, which are received each morning at the executive mansion. But even this is not sufficient to meet the desires of the chief executive, and to it have been added the services of two specially selected clipping bureaus.

To Study Clippings. If his busy schedule permits Mr. Hoover makes a careful study of the clippings before leaving his office, although sometimes he takes them to the White House proper and goes over them there.

President Hoover is most interested at present in the reaction of the press to two of the great domestic problems of the day, tariff revision and farm relief.

The papers from which "the yellow journal" is compiled are the dailies of the larger cities. The task of combing the smaller papers has been given over to the clipping bureaus. These, incidentally, were chosen with some difficulty as first inquiries revealed that only a few such establishments make a practice of clipping editorials.

Started by Wilson. The president's own newspaper was established during the Wilson administration. It was the idea of Joseph Tumulty, President Wilson's secretary, and was used in varying degrees by both President Harding and President Coolidge. At the outset of the Hoover administration its scope was enlarged by increasing the number of papers from which it was compiled and adding the services of the clipping bureaus.

Frequently marked copies of newspapers are sent to the White House by citizens from many parts of the country who are interested in some particular project or problem and sometimes articles from these are added to the columns of "the yellow journal."

For more than ten years the task of preparing "the yellow journal" has been entrusted to John McNabb, a veteran of the White House clerical force. He finds it a job that occupies his entire time and the part time services of an assistant.

CHICAGO HOSPITAL IS SWEEPED BY BLAZE

Patients, Nurses and Doctors All Escape From Building.

Chicago, June 4.—(AP)—The Chicago General hospital was swept by fire early today, and although 17 patients, several doctors and nurses were in the building as the flames and smoke mounted to the fourth floor, all escaped injury.

Some were carried down ladders by firemen, while others were rescued by passersby. Ambulances removed the patients to other hospitals.

The fire, which did $25,000 damage, started in the laundry room and was confined to one side of the building, which is divided by a fire wall.

Chief Fire Marshal Alphonse J. Corrigan was particularly interested in the quantity of X-ray films stored in the hospital. With the recent Cleveland hospital fire in mind, Corrigan's first thought was to keep the flames from these films.

Corrigan said he would start an immediate investigation into the apparently careless manner in which the X-ray films were left in a jumbled heap in a room dangerously close to the flames.

"If the flames had reached the film, we would have had a disaster similar to that in Cleveland," he said.

Dr. Edward C. Meyer, house physician, said a man had come to the hospital Saturday with an offer to buy the old X-ray films.

"The films were taken from the vaults in various parts of the hospitals and placed in the room, where they were found pending the man's return," Dr. Meyer said.

Many thousands of persons watched the fire and the rescue of the patients, the hospital being located close to the busy Clark-Diversey-Broadway intersection.

VIRGINIA CONTEST VIEWED AS LOCAL BY RASKOB, IS SAID

New York, June 4.—(AP)—The New York Herald Tribune said today that John J. Raskob, chairman of the democratic national committee, views as wholly local for the present the contest in Virginia of followers of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., against the Smith-Raskob adherents of the party.

He said he has given no consideration to the call of the bishop to the dry and anti-Smith democrats to oppose in the coming state elections all candidates and policies of Smith-Raskob complexion.

Mr. Raskob disclosed that several months ago he had offered to resign his position in the interest of harmony, but said that his son had told him that he intended to marry the young woman.

BOARD TO SURVEY NEW RIVER CHANNEL NAMED

Washington, June 4.—(AP)—A board of five army engineers was selected today by Major General Edgar Jadwin, chief of army engineers, to make a survey of the proposed nine-foot channel depth on the upper Mississippi river between the mouth of the Missouri river and Minneapolis.

The survey will be commenced at once and is expected to be completed late next fall so that the board's findings can be submitted to congress during its regular session beginning in December. If the board's recommendations are favorable, the project then, according to war department officials, could be incorporated in congressional rivers and harbors legislation.

Brigadier General Thomas H. Jackson, president of the Mississippi river commission and district engineer for the western division stationed at St. Louis, was named as the head of the survey board.

The nine-foot channel project is proposed to link the upper Mississippi river with the lower half of that stream from St. Louis to the Gulf of Mexico, which has that depth, so that large barges can be used on the upper stretches of the river.

STATE RESTS AGAINST OFFICERS IN KILLING

Students Failed To Stop When So Ordered, Is Testimony of Witness.

Abingdon, Va., June 4.—(AP)—The state rested its case late today in the trial of James W. Crowe, Washington county deputy sheriff, one of three officers charged with murder for the fatal shooting of J. W. Kendrick, Emory and Henry college student, during an attempt to stop an automobile on the highway.

James McKernolds, an Abingdon city policeman, who with W. H. Worley, another deputy sheriff, was with Crowe at the time of the shooting, took the stand for the defense before court adjourned, testifying that the automobile in which young Kendrick, Paul Phelps and Sterling Dutton were riding, refused to halt at the command of officers. Phelps and Dutton had testified that they were not ordered to halt.

McKernolds was proceeded on the stand by his son, Henry McKernolds, who related the actions of the boys at the garage. The younger McKernolds said that he thought Phelps and Dutton were drinking and that Kendrick was not with them at the garage where they obtained gasoline. Police-McKernolds testified that he did not see Kendrick.

Phelps and Dutton, who said they were not waived down and had not been ordered to halt, denied having any whiskey with them, or having had any during the night.

Earl Crabtree, a bank clerk summoned by the state, who said he was driving in an automobile and only about 60 yards away at the time of the shooting, said that the officers' automobile was stopped behind the automobile containing the boys when he saw the shots fired by men standing in the road.

Dutton testified that the automobile containing the officers did not pass, but ran up alongside and then dropped back before the shooting began.

Great interest continued in the trial today on the part of the populace and the courthouse was crowded at all hours.

Return of Tarzan (This Week Brief Review of Tarzan's Early History as Shown in Previous Strips)

By E. R. Burroughs

By the time Tarzan—the name the apes had given him which meant "White Skin"—was ten years old, he was an excellent climber and could do many wonderful things. He was fully as strong as the average man of 30. And then he began to realize that a great difference existed between himself and his fellows.

In the higher land that the tribe frequented was a little lake. Here it was that Tarzan first saw his face in the clear, still waters of its bottom. He was appalled! He turned red with shame as he compared his face and naked body with his more fortunate brothers.

To Tarzan the closed and silent cabin was always a source of never-ending mystery and pleasure. His own connection with the cabin had never been told him. Kala had explained vaguely that his father had been a strange white ape. He didn't know that Kala was not his own mother.

Tarzan slowly and cautiously entered. He saw three skeletons, giving but passing heed. The other contents riveted his attention! He opened chests, examined minutely strange tools, weapons, books, and clothing. Finding a sharp hunting knife, he immediately cut his finger. A child's illustrated alphabet interested him greatly.

One picture of a little ape similar to himself fascinated him mightily. It had a strange colored fur, for such he thought the coat and trousers were. Beneath the picture were these little bugs—B-O-Y. Under another picture the "bug" appeared again—A B-O-Y AND A D-O-G.

Atlanta Households To Get Far West Fruit and Produce

The purchase Tuesday by McCord Bros., Atlanta commission merchants, of the first car of Arizona grapefruit ever to be sold on the local market was said by commission men to be the forerunner of a general influx of California, Arizona and Texas fruit and produce into Atlanta and vicinity, as a result of the quarantine on the reported Mediterranean fly-infested Arizona products.

Arizona just is coming into its own as a fruit producing state, the commission men reported. The once barren and sandy deserts of the state have been irrigated thoroughly and now producing some of the best fruits obtainable, it is said.

Cost Slightly Higher. "The Arizona fruit, by virtue of its long haul, necessarily is slightly higher than the Florida fruit," Lucius O. Gale said Tuesday in speaking for the McCord Bros. Company. "But it is juicy and has a good weight."

SUNRISE ON MOON IS PHOTOGRAPHED BY BIG TELESCOPE

Princeton, N. J., June 4.—(United News).—A 50-foot motion picture film showing sunrise on the moon has been taken through a large telescope at Princeton university, Professor John Q. Stewart of the astronomy department announced tonight.

At the time the picture was taken the moon was nine days old in the lunar month. The device used was designed by Robert Fleming, an optical consulting engineer of Upper Merionide, N. J., with the assistance of his son, Edward G. F. Annett, and Arthur J. Bennett, graduate students of Princeton.

"Gains 12 lbs. Feels Like New Girl."

"Was run down, underweight. Nothing seemed to bother me until I took IRONIZED YEAST. Gained 12 pounds. Feel more like a new girl every day."—(Miss M. W., Beaver City, Utah.)

Thousands write letters like above. They tell us they were positively amazed at speed with which IRONIZED YEAST added 8 to 15 pounds; gave new strength; a girlish skin; banished age-lines.

What Makes Ironized Yeast Work Such Quick Flesh-Building Wonders?

Ironized Yeast is two great tonics in one. Weight-building YEAST and strengthening, blood-enriching IRON. The Yeast is the kind used in making malt and which makes malt so beneficial.

This Yeast is treated with two kinds of iron used for years by highest medical authorities. Iron enriches the blood; makes cheeks rosy; tones nerves and muscles.

The Yeast is further treated with Violet Rays, the latest scientific discovery, which increases its energizing and weight-building powers.

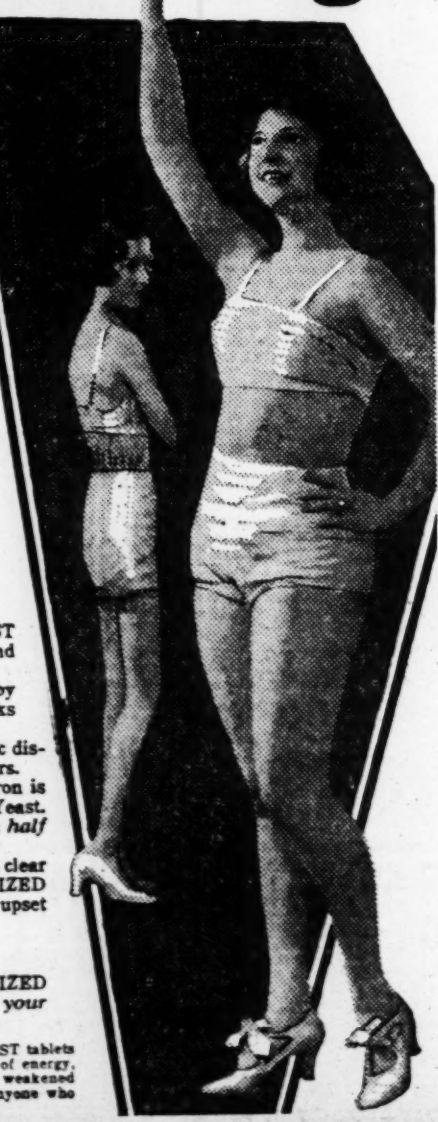

Only when Yeast is thus Ironized is it most effective; for iron is needed to bring out the weight-building, strengthening value of Yeast. By this special formula, Ironized Yeast gives you results in half the time required by Yeast or Iron taken separately.

Stop being "skinny" and unattractive. Fill out bony form. Get a clear skin, new strength. Feel years younger and look it. Get IRONIZED YEAST today. Pleasant tablets without "yeasty" taste. Do not upset stomach. No gas or bloating.

Try it on Money-Back Offer

Go today to any drug store. Get a full size treatment of IRONIZED YEAST. If not delighted with results of this generous trial get your money back.

CAUTION! While the amazing health-building value of IRONIZED YEAST tablets has been clearly and positively demonstrated in cases of lack of energy, indigestion, constipation, skin eruptions, poor complexion, and a generally weakened physical and mental condition, IRONIZED YEAST should not be used by anyone who objects to having weight increased to normal.—G. ## THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

"Old Sojers."

An old English soldier's ditty that was enthusiastically adopted and sung by Uncle Sam's doughboys during the war, proclaims the astonishing biological curiosity that "old sojers never grow old, but simply grow bigger."

The real citizens of Atlanta whose all is invested in its existence, welfare and future municipal importance demand the annexation of all the suburbs, or none.

We have sections now, like the first ward, that have waited many years for their full quota of city benefits, and those patient, tax-paying citizens should be let out of the city in all justice if those adjacent are not to be brought in until all city benefits are ready prepared for them.

The Greater Atlanta must be incorporated, and that without paltering and political favoritism.

THE GEORGIA COTTON CRISIS.

The 1928 cotton crop was 14,477,874 bales. Texas produced more than one-third of the total and Georgia's 1,029,499 was a little more than one-fourteenth of the whole crop.

The yield of lint per acre throughout the cotton region was 152.9 pounds, but the yield per acre in Georgia was 132 pounds, making her the lowest average producer among the sixteen states, Florida only producing less per acre.

In 1920 the census reported Georgia as the second largest cotton raising state, but in 1927 she fell to fourth place and in 1928 to sixth—Texas, Mississippi, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Alabama ranking ahead of her.

What is the logical and sane deduction from these disconcerting figures?

Obviously to every person of business and economic sense it is not that we should increase our Georgia cotton acreage and undertake to raise more of the same sort of cotton that our farms are now producing. That would mean more work, more investment and a very small increase of the lowest-priced grades of cotton, most of it "half-and-half" stuff that would be rejected by the spinners of average textiles, both at home and abroad.

Whoever is interested seriously in Georgia cotton production, whether he be farmer, supply merchant, banker, factory conductor, or freight mover, should set himself to the task in his community of urging cotton growers to the salvation duty of growing "more and better cotton" on every acre that he ought to cultivate.

The growing of the poorest grades of cotton is wasteful and destructive. The results discourage scientific cultivation, reduce the proper application of fertilizers, deteriorate the power and productivity of the land, and eventually drive the self-improvised farmer to town to get a paying job.

Unless there is a general picking up of cotton raising methods in Georgia the industry is sure to degenerate, become unprofitable more widely over the state, and impoverish yet more of our rural population annually.

LLOYD GEORGE IN THE GAP.

The calling of Ramsay MacDonald to form a new cabinet to conduct the British government will be regarded with profound interest in many countries other than Great Britain and her dominions overseas.

The new electorate in the British Isles gave the labor party more seats in parliament than any other party, but not a majority of the whole house, so that MacDonald will have the peculiar and perilous task of carrying on what an American would call "a bob-tail government."

The rock that will menace his craft from the moment it sets sail will be Lloyd George, the most ingenious and resourceful British politician since Disraeli. He holds the balance of power in the new parliament and upon his ability to use his party to vote solidly and at will depends the course and continuity of the new regime. He can supply MacDonald with a "safe conduct" for his administration, or he can wreck the machine at will.

So far Lloyd George has not said what he will do; probably will not say until he sees the lineup of the labor cabinet and parliament is advised as to the salient policies which it will advocate. Until George does speak there will be uncertainty in the situation and the British people, alike with those of the world at large, will be on the alert to learn which way Great Britain is to head out.

Portes Gil has undertaken to dry Mexico but if he wants a real job he should attempt farm relief.

Half the world is engaged in agriculture. The other half bosses the job.

Youth Doesn't Go to the Devil; It Is Sent

By Robert Quillen

Thieves are made and not born. And disrespect for law is incubated by a process as natural and inevitable as the hatching of an egg.

The village in which I live is not typical of America, for it still clings to the belief that a black man should do the work while the white man sits in the shade; but it will serve to illustrate the dangers that attend keeping the hands soft.

The boys, for the most part, are given "an easier time than dad had." They finish the local school and go away to college before they settle down to work. And not one in a dozen learns a trade or has a regular job.

If they were rich men's sons, that wouldn't matter so much; but they have no money, and a boy without money endures many humiliations.

If a boy feels the need of money, and local custom forbids him to do common labor that will soil his hands, he will learn to barter and trade. He will scheme. And when he learns that some "big business men" are rogues and yet escape punishment, he may be tempted to steal.

Three boys who ranked high in this village of one thousand people—three who felt superior to common labor—tried to keep their hands soft after leaving home and ended in the penitentiary. Another who had a white-collar job "coveted" more money than he could earn and shot himself to escape "disgrace."

Within the last decade, four lads in their teens have been caught stealing here at home. Not one of them had been taught to work.

Work keeps boys out of mischief, but that isn't its chief service. It prevents spending money. And a boy who doesn't develop the habit of working for money will develop the habit of scheming to get it in some other way.

As to the present-day disrespect for law, that also is a product of loafing.

Kings and nobles, through all the pages of history, mock the laws of God and man because their easy living, obtained without the labor of common men, makes them feel superior to the rules that govern common law.

Commoners, also, enabled to live in luxury without selling their hands, feel superior to the law decreed by the poor.

Modern youth scorns law because its pockets are full of easy, unearned money.

"By the sweat of your brow," says the law. And the man who is above the law will think himself above others as certainly as night follows day.

Fill a boy's pockets; free him of duties; give him infinite leisure; and within a year he will say: "Laws are made for the lower classes."

Health Talks

BY DR. W. F. BRADY

IS BRONCHOPNEUMONIA PULMONARY OR NOT?

Recently a reader sent in an interesting letter describing a decision of the supreme court of Washington that infection of abrasions on the hand, leading to fatal septicemia (blood poisoning), was an accident—and the health and accident insurance company had to pay the claim.

The Alabama supreme court has recently reversed a judgment of the court of appeals and affirmed the judgment of the trial court (Southern Life and Health Insurance Company vs. Drake (Ala.) 1178, 401, 1178-402) which was in favor of the beneficiary of an insurance policy. The policy provided that if the insured should die within the first year "either directly or indirectly from tuberculosis, pulmonary disease or chronic bronchitis, or cancer, or disease of the heart, or kidneys, or pellagra, or the company's liability should be limited to one-quarter of the sum specified as death benefit. The insured actually died of bronchopneumonia. The company offered the beneficiary one-quarter of the sum and the beneficiary rejected the offer and sued for the full amount. Obviously, the company's intent was to protect itself from

STRAIGHT-EIGHT UNDER
$1000

IN April the public swamped Marmon salesrooms looking at the Roosevelt. . . In May they bought every one the Marmon factory could build and wanted more. . . And now in June, even bigger things are happening. . . There is no competition to Roosevelt value even in sight.

If you want a better and finer type of transportation; if you want to drive a straight-eight rather than the customary six; if you want a car that rides and drives with anything on the road—and still want to hold your investment to around $1000—then you will just naturally be interested in the Roosevelt. . . It's the only automobile that offers all of these things at this price. The Roosevelt is roomy, sturdy, economical to operate, with 70 horsepower, Marmon-built straight-eight motor.

A Straight-Eight for Every Purse—Roosevelt, $995; Marmon 68, $1465; Marmon 75, $1965. Prices at factory. Group equipment extra.

HIGHWAY INJUNCTION TO COME UP SATURDAY

Valdosta, Ga., June 4.—(Special.) Judge W. E. Thomas, of the superior court, Saturday will hear arguments on the temporary injunction he recently signed restraining the state highway department from extending the length of the bridge over the Withlacoochee river at Blue Springs.

The proposal to extend the bridge westward has aroused much interest, aside from the opposition from the owners of the springs property. During periods of high water in the river the spring is overflowed, occasionally to a depth of 10 or 15 feet, and there are many who contend that substituting a bridge for the embankment will really relieve this situation. The owners of the property, however, think it will injure the springs more than the present arrangement. Both sides will make a showing Saturday before Judge Thomas and the decision is being awaited with interest.

Hill, literary editor of the Sunday school board of the Southern Baptist convention, Nashville, Tenn., as the orator for the occasion. Degrees were conferred upon 40 members of the senior class.

Liquor Shipments Into U. S. From Canada Decreasing Naturally, Figures Show

Drop From 607,102 Gallons in March to 200,114 in April Recorded by Government.

BY CECIL OWEN.

United News Staff Correspondent. Washington, June 3.—Liquor-laden vessels clearing from Canadian ports for the United States have decreased their cargoes naturally within recent months, figures made public by the customs service revealed today.

An official report prepared for Assistant Treasury Secretary Seymour Lowman shows liquor shipments cleared decreased from 607,102 gallons in March of this year to 200,114 gallons in April. Tentative figures for May show a still further large reduction in liquor clearings.

In the opinion of Frank Down, acting commissioner of customs, the approximately 75 per cent drop in liquor clearances for the United States is attributable to efficiency of the reorganized customs border patrol at Detroit, where most of the liquor is smuggled through. Some comes in also through Buffalo.

Show Decreases.

Figures on liquor clearances from Windsor, Canada, which is directly across the river from Detroit, show a progressive decrease from 118,000 cases in March to 71,000 in April and about 50,000 in May, Down said.

The Detroit border patrol number 150 trained men under the command of Customs Inspector Albertson, a former naval officer, who was placed in charge at Detroit on April 1. He had been on the Detroit staff and was promoted after indictment of about 20 border patrolmen on bribery charges. Several of those indicted have been sentenced to Leavenworth penitentiary.

While heartened by the large decrease in the liquor clearances, Down emphasized the treasury still considers smuggling of liquor from Canada as its major problem. Official figures on the amount exported are available because the Canadian government furnishes the United States with a record of each vessel cleared.

Departure Unhindered.

After legally passing through the Canadian customs, the rum-runners proceed to smuggle his contraband through American ports. There is no attempt by Canada to prevent departure for the United States of a liquor vessel as the dominion government has never needed to this country's request to deny clearance papers to rum-runners.

Efforts to have Canada sign an amendment to the existing liquor treaty between the two countries which would forbid clearance of rum schooners met with failure at a recent conference in Ottawa. Since then treasury and state department officials have indicated a willingness to abrogate the liquor treaties between this government and other countries.

HALF BILLION FARM AID FUND SUPPORTED

Washington, June 4.—(AP)—Assurance was given by responsible leaders in congress today that they would support a recommendation to make a half billion dollars available for the stabilization of agriculture as soon as the farm relief bill, which would authorize the proposed farm board to spend that amount, is enacted into law.

Among those who expressed the hope that President Hoover would send congress an estimate for the full amount was Senator McNary, of Oregon, chairman of the senate agriculture committee. He said he thought it advisable to give the board every opportunity to take the fullest advantage of the benefits intended to be provided by the relief legislation which is nearing enactment.

Considerable interest was manifested at the capital in the immediate reaction to this information on the Chicago grain market, where wheat closed buoyant at the day's top point, 27.8 to 28.1 cents per bushels higher than yesterday's finish.

The farm bill now in the process of final adjustment by the conference committee composed of senate and house members, "authorizes" an appropriation of $500,000,000, but does not appropriate the sum. It is customary for legislation to be so worded and upon its enactment the White House sends up an estimate of how much ought to be made available.

It had been thought the department of agriculture would suggest an initial appropriation of one or two hundred millions. A number of farm leaders have taken the position, however, that the whole amount should be provided at once in view of the condition facing several leading current crops which are held to be in need of early attention.

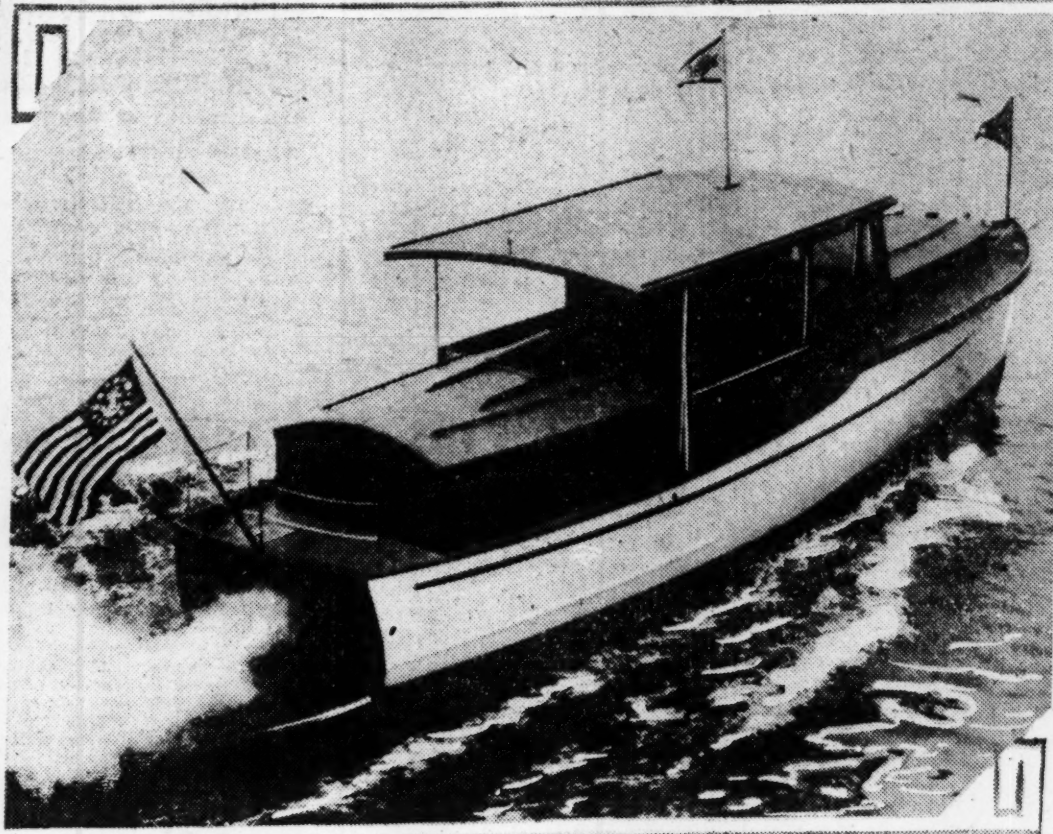

Many leaders have been watching the wheat crop with some concern and feel the board should direct its attention to its situation without delay. If the board were to buy up the surplus wheat crop, the leaders pointed out, about $175,000,000 would be needed for this alone. In addition, they feel the cotton crop and perhaps live stock need the attention of the board.

With the farm bill promising to reach its final legislative stages soon, the leaders have been giving considerable thought to the practical working out of the measure's provisions. Some leaders are of the opinion that President Hoover has tentatively decided upon some of the members of the board and the feeling is generally held that the president will endeavor to put the board to work at the earliest possible moment.

Cuts Meeting. The farm relief conference committee, which is composing a single farm bill from the two passed separately by the senate and house, called a meeting tonight in the hope of disposing of the export demerit plan. Earlier in the day the senate conferees accepted the house provisions for setting up clearing house associations and the house members accepted the senate sections for insurance against price declines.

The senate members also agreed to eliminate provisions in their bill under which the half-billion to be given by the senate and house would be allocated to specific purposes, including $375,000,000 for buying up surplus crops. The house section giving the board the right to use this money as it sees fit was accepted by the committee.

New Method of Telephoto Transmission by Radio, Wire or Light Given Test

Device To Be Ready for Commercial Use Shortly, Westinghouse Officials Believe.

BY MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY
United News Staff Correspondent.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 4.—A new method of telephoto transmission by which a picture four by six and a half inches can be transmitted and delivered ready for use in four and one-half minutes was demonstrated at the National Electric Light Association convention here.

It was shown by the Westinghouse Electric Company, having been developed to a point where its entry into the commercial field may come at an early date. While the laboratory models transmit facsimiles four by six and one-half inches, the apparatus may be built to transmit and receive facsimiles in any size desired.

To operate the device an ordinary photograph, letter, or written or printed sheet is placed upon a cylinder which rotates slowly and at the same time moves longitudinally.

A sharp beam of light is focused on the surface of the picture and when the cylinder has moved for four and one-half minutes the beam has played upon every bit of the surface of the picture or message.

The beam of light has been reflected by the surface of the photograph or writing being transmitted, gathered up by a parabolic reflector and carried to a photo electric tube or "electric eye" which issues an electrical impulse varying in power to the shading of the original photograph or letter.

This impulse is translated into whatever form of energy is required, depending on whether the transmission is by wire, radio or upon a beam of light, and is picked up at the receiving station.

There it passed through another photo electric tube and is again transformed into an electrical impulse, which impulse is passed through the paper upon which the copy is to be received.

The paper, as it moves to receive the image, goes through a chemical bath which so sensitizes it that its color is changed by electrical current, but it is not affected by light.

The paper receiving the image passes over a revolving cylinder. There is a spiral edge raised upon the surface of the cylinder and a knife edge bears down upon the paper from above. These edges form the electrical contact and pass the current through the paper. As the paper slowly moves over the cylinders, the image unfolds.

The entire apparatus is about the size of an ordinary phonograph cabinet. Its only moving mechanism is the cylinder and the small motor required to turn it slowly.

SOUTHERN CHURCH REJECTED IN MERGER

United Presbyterian Group Expresses Thanks for Overture for Union.

Pittsburgh, June 4.—(AP)—The general assembly of the United Presbyterian church today adopted a resolution expressing appreciation of the spirit in which the Presbyterian Church in the United States made an overture for a union of the denominations, but rejected an amendment under which the southern church would have been asked to merge with the United Presbyterians.

The amendment proposed an overture to the Presbyterian Church in the United States for a merger of the churches. It was defeated overwhelmingly and the original resolution of the committee on closer relations adopted.

The original resolution said: "Resolved, That the general assembly record its conviction that a union with the southern Presbyterian church is desirable, providing that the union be a real union without loss of any considerable minority in other denominations. Since the presbyterial reports do not indicate that the time is quite ripe for the submission of a formal overture on the question of an organic union, we recommend that the assembly's committee on closer relations be authorized to prosecute its work more vigorously, in order that the way may be prepared for a true and happy union of our two denominations of mutual acquaintance and brotherly love."

Opposed Early Merger. A number of ministers of the church opposed an early merger of the denominations. The Rev. Dr. E. S. McKittick, Pasadena, Cal., a former moderator, said the basis of the proposed union was vague.

"If the southern church is so anxious to unite with us, we had better unite at all," the Rev. Dr. W. M. Woodfin, Pittsburgh, said. "Our church is doing a grand and glorious work and we are unwilling to have it wrecked by a precipitate move. Better five years in consummation than 25 years in reconstruction." The Rev. Dr. C. E. McStravick, of Texas, was the only commissioner to the assembly in favor of the overture to the southern church. "Now seems to be the time when we ought to take the step," he said. "Already 15 years have elapsed since negotiations were begun. Therefore, to delay action again is apt to be regarded by them as an indication that we are not taking their overture too seriously."

The Rev. Dr. R. M. Swentengen.

St. Paul, predicted a union of all Presbyterian churches was not far off. He said the United Presbyterian body would be received "with open arms into the big family" of Presbyterians. The committee on bills and overtures recommended also that a union with the southern church be deferred. It recommended a union of all Presbyterian churches as a more desirable move, and favored appointment of a committee on Presbyterian unity to meet with other similar bodies to negotiate such a union.

She is president of the Asheville Junior League, and her beauty and grace have recommended her for the position of festival queen. Mr. Woodcock, who was appointed king of the festival, is a socially prominent in Asheville and a leader in the younger set of the city also.

The king and queen of Rhododendron will have absolute sway over the events of the week of festivities. Their coronation will take place in an elaborate manner at Grove Park inn on the night of June 17. Proclamations delivered by their majesties during the week will mark the opening of the various pageants and spectacles with which the program of the festival is filled.

Fifteen states of the southern group will send beautiful girls appointed by the various governors, as state sponsors to the court of the Rhododendron king and queen. Twenty young men and women, chosen from the younger social set in Asheville, will fill places in the court of Rhododendron.

SPECULATION CAUSES
SENATE OUTBURSTReserve Board Singled Out for Special Attack by Speakers.

Washington, June 4.—(P)—A general outburst against "the orgy of speculation" in the stock markets occurred today in the senate with the main critics prescribing almost as many different remedies for the situation.

The federal reserve board was singled out especially for attacks. President Hoover, Calvin Coolidge and various government officials also came in for condemnation.

Investigations, a tax on stock market speculation, raising of the rediscount rate and amendment of the federal reserve act were advanced as a means of checking the flow of billions of dollars through the market.

Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, and Glass, democrat, Virginia, were the most outspoken. They insisted the stock market dealings had attracted an excessive amount of capital at the expense of legitimate business.

Senator Glass announced he would propose an amendment to the pending tariff bill a 5 per cent tax on stock transactions which were held for less than 90 days. He announced he would favor repeal of the provision in the federal reserve act allowing loans on United States bonds for 15 days.

Would Check Flow. Senator Couzens contended a raising of the rediscount rate by the federal reserve board would have served to check the flow of money into the stock market. Senator Glass, however, opposed this move as a penalty to business and he congratulated the federal reserve board for resisting the "pounding" of the New York Federal Reserve Bank for a raise in the rediscount rate.

Senator Glass said that "the president of the United States literally jumped into the stock pit" recently to declare that "there was nothing to be apprehended from this riot of six billions of dollars of credit in stock gambling."

Senator King, democrat, Utah, said Calvin Coolidge, while president, had expressed approval, certainly not disapproval, of the large amount then utilized, nearly four billion dollars, for stock gambling purposes.

Short Term Loans. The debate preceded passage of an administration bill authorizing a new form of short term securities by the government to be sold at a discount rather than on an interest-bearing basis. Senator Couzens forced an amendment in the bill, already passed by the house, to eliminate a provision authorizing an exemption from taxation of the capital gains tax of holders of the securities.

Senator McMaster, republican, South Dakota, said he had heard of a middle western banking institution borrowing $75,000,000 from the Federal Reserve bank and sending it to Wall Street to be loaned at the high interest rate prevailing there on call money. He declared the federal reserve board had the power to stop that.

SOVIET OFFICIALS
ARRESTED WHILE
FLEEING CHINESE

Harbin, Manchuria, June 4.—(P)—The soviet consul general at Mukden, N. K. Kuznetsov, was returned here today under arrest with two lesser soviet officials from "Manchuria, where they had attempted to cross into Siberia. Another soviet official attempting to reach Moscow by way of Vladivostok was arrested at Suifeng and is being returned also.

It was learned the arrests were ordered by General Chang Chin-Hui, Governor of the Harbin special district, who after receipt of a soviet note threatening withdrawal of immunity to Chinese officials in Russia decided he would not permit any Russians to leave Manchuria. Their presence, he declared, was necessary to impeding investigations of alleged communist infiltration of Manchuria.

ACTION IN POWER
PAPER OWNERSHIP
ASKED OF MITCHELL

Washington, June 4.—(P)—The senate transmitted to the attorney-general today for "appropriate action" the report of the postmaster general showing the last statements of ownership filed by the publishers of the newspapers in which the International Paper & Power Co. owns stock.

The resolution of Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, proposing that the postmaster general's report be sent to the justice department, was adopted without debate or roll call.

The postoffice department report disclosed some of the newspapers in statements of ownership failed to show interests of the International Paper & Power Co. Officials of the power company told of their interests in 13 papers at a recent federal trade commission hearing.

The resolution also requested the attorney-general to advise what legislation, if any, was necessary to make "completely effective" the law requiring newspapers to show their ownership.

ASSAULT CHARGES
AGAINST OFFICERS ARE NOLLE PROSSED

Montgomery, Ala., June 4.—(P)—Charges of assault to murder against C. C. Scales and G. C. Cargile, former investigators for the attorney-general of Alabama, were nolle prossed by Judge Leon McCord in circuit court here today when the defendants pleaded guilty to simple charges of assault. A fine of $10 was assessed against each.

Agreement to nolle prossing of the assault to murder charges was reached at a conference between Solicitor Temple Seibels and defense counsel prior to opening of court.

The charges against the former officers were brought by Miss Annie Mae Lewis and Miss Estelle Camp, Montgomery county school teachers, following a midnight automobile chase in which both parties were said to have fired several shots.

Commissions of both officers were revoked by Governor Graves.

BODY OF WOMAN,
HEAD BATTERED,
FOUND IN CLOSET

Los Angeles, June 4.—(P)—The body of Virginia Patten, of Los Angeles, was found with head battered, hanging in the closet of an apartment house here today. Police ordered the arrest of Bill Tollman, radio technician of Station KPO of San Francisco, in connection with the crime.

FRUIT FLY ZONE
EXTENDED AS NEW LARVAE IS FOUND

Lake Wales, Fla., June 4.—(P)—Zone one, the district in which Mediterranean fruit fly have been found, was extended southward today, following the discovery Saturday of fly larvae in a Turinam cherry tree north of Lake Wales, according to William C. Nannay, an inspector for the state plant board.

The protective zone, established around the tree for a distance of 10 miles, includes 10 packing houses and 40,000 boxes of oranges, to have been marketed within the next 10 days. Towns inside the second zone include Babson Park, Highland Park, Lake Wales, Mountain Lake, Elois and Alturas.

Meanwhile county commissioners of Hillsborough, hemmed in on two sides by discovery of the fly in Polk and Pinellas counties, imposed an absolute quarantine against all fruit and vegetables moving toward its borders.

SKYLINE HIGHWAY
AT CUMBERLAND GAP IS OPENED

Middlesboro, Ky., June 4.—(P)—The Skyline highway, which leads off from the road connecting Middlesboro and Cumberland Gap, Tenn., and winds its sinuous way up to the top of Pinnacle rock, was formally opened today by Governor Flen D. Sampson, of Kentucky, Governor Myers Y. Cooper, of Ohio, as the principal speakers.

They untied the ribbons of blue and gray silk held by Mrs. Ernest Woodward, of Louisville, and Mrs. Charles L. Larue, of Knoxville, Tenn., and thus signaled the opening of the new roadway which leads to the top of the Pinnacle rock, where Daniel Boone and pioneers are believed to have stood and looked far across the valleys into what is now Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia. The Pinnacle rock stands looking down on the historic Cumberland gap through which the pioneers from Virginia swept into Kentucky, and from there spread into Ohio and the northwest.

UNION OF CHURCHES
AWAITING APPROVALChristian Church Agreement
Lacking as Congregational Session Ends.

Detroit, June 2.—(P)—With only approval of the General Convention of the Christian Church standing in the way of union of the National Council of the Congregational Churches and the Christian body, the biennial meeting of the congregationalists stood ready to adjourn today, final committee reports and cleanup business was on today's program.

The Christian church body is expected to vote for the merger plan at the meeting in Piqua, Ohio, in October and the joint body will meet in 1931, probably at Hartford, Conn. The united body will be composed of some 6,500 churches and more than 1,000,000 members.

Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCullough, of Evanston, Ill., chairman of the prohibition and law enforcement committee of the Woman's City Club of Chicago, speaking before the congregationalists last night denounced prohibition reform movements by eastern society women.

Four committees for the study of agricultural problems will be named by the council if recommendations of Newton Jenkins, Chicago attorney for the American Federation of Farm Bureaus, are adopted.

The name of the committee on law enforcement was changed to the committee of law observance.

SUITS ARE FILED
TO CONDEMN LAND
IN FLOOD WORK

St. Louis, June 4.—(P)—First of 90 suits to be brought by federal government in condemnation proceedings to prepare for construction of a floodway west of the Mississippi river between Birds Point and New Madrid, Mo., were filed in United States district court here today by John C. Dyott, special assistant district attorney. Seven suits were filed involving 233 acres of land.

STRUCTURAL IRON
MEN REPUDIATE
WAGE AGREEMENT

Chicago, June 4.—(P)—Two thousand striking structural iron workers voted unanimously today to remain away from work until their demand for $13 a day is accepted by builders. Their vote repudiated an agreement reached yesterday by two of their international officers meeting with contractors.

Michael Artery, international vice president of the union, and Arthur Evenson, business agent, tentatively had accepted a compromise agreement by the Iron League, representing the contractors, which called for $12.50 a day until October 1 and $13 a day thereafter until May 31, 1934.

The strike, which began Saturday, has reached a stage where thousands of other building mechanics dependent upon the iron workers have been thrown out of work.

DOCTOR'S $100,000
DAMAGE SUIT
CALLED MISTRIAL

Memphis, Tenn., June 4.—(P)—A mistrial today ended the hearing of the suit for $100,000 damages filed against Dr. Henry G. Hill by Dr. Willis O. Campbell after a fight in the Baptist hospital wardroom last fall. Dr. Campbell's attorneys entered a motion for a new trial, which will be heard soon.

Eleven jurors voted to dismiss the suit without award. The one juror who favored Dr. Campbell said he would "hold out for 10 years" and the jury foreman reported to the court that a verdict was impossible. The jury was then dismissed.

Dr. Hill's defense was that he fought to protect himself when the two surgeons met in the washroom. Dr. Campbell was ready to enter a shower when the fight began, and he contended that Dr. Hill struck him without provocation, bent him with a chair, and left him unconscious and badly injured. Dr. Hill testified that he did not use a chair, and that the fist blows hurt him as much as they hurt Dr. Campbell.

TARIFF VOTE, RECESS
HOLD SENATE NOTICE

Washington, June 4.—(P)—Congressional recess plans were the subject of new negotiations today as an agreement was sought in the senate over setting a time for a vote on the tariff bill before the opening of the regular session in December.

Unless this agreement is forthcoming, Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, announced he would insist that the senate return in midsummer to consider the measure.

The decision of the senate finance committee to close hearings on the bill by July 10 will permit the committee to have the measure ready for the senate early in August.

Most of the committee members, republicans and democrats, favored the proposal to have the senate recess until September with an agreement for a vote on the bill by November. Whether that agreement can be reached is doubtful.

Chairman Smoot, of the finance committee, and Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, the ranking democrat of the committee, were busy today naming their members on the subcommittees to conduct the tariff hearings. The first action looking to the presentation of testimony at the hearings was taken today by California congressional delegation in deciding to call several witnesses to urge higher duties than those provided in the bill on various fruits, vegetables and nuts, all prime commodities in the Pacific coast state.

The delegation also decided to carry on the drive for a duty on long staple cotton which the house left on the free list and for a higher levy on mazzanese.

The delegation also decided to support the house bill rate of 8 cents a hundred pounds on cement, now on the free list.

MRS. EVA RABLEN
GETS LIFE AFTER
PLEA TO MURDER

Sonoma, Cal., June 4.—(P)—Eva Rablen pleaded guilty today to a charge of slaying her husband, Carroll Rablen, on April 27, and was sentenced to life imprisonment at San Quentin prison, with no recommendation for parole. The woman admitted she placed poison in her husband's coffee.

Mrs. Rablen was known as a "mail-order bride." She came from Quana, Texas, about 15 months ago to marry Rablen after becoming acquainted with him by correspondence through a matrimonial agency.

Keith's Georgia.

Keith's Georgia theater is offering Roland West's all-talking dramatic success "Alibi," which contains an entire star cast. "Alibi" is a story of the continual battle between crooks and the law. It also has its love theme. Chester Morris, cast in the role of "Chick" Williams, is said by critics to be one of the most outstanding actors on or off the screen. "Alibi" takes the glamour away from the crooks and shows them in their own cowardly light. On the stage Jimmy Burhill and "Blondie of 1929" hold the headline honors on a bill of Keith vaudeville. Theirs is an act of fun, song and dance.

Loew's Capitol.

A Fox Movietone production, "Hearts in Dixie," something unique in motion pictures, is offered this week on the screen at Loew's Capitol, along with five acts of Loew vaudeville. The sound film portrays a simple but effective drama of the Mississippi delta country, and interpolates a wealth of musical numbers, including negro spirituals and chants. The vaudeville program is headed by Edith Griffith, singing comedienne, starring in "Love in the Ranks," a military novelty that presents a combination of music, dancing and comedy.

Howard.

The delightful Dolores Costello is appearing in her first comedy role as "The Glad Rag Doll" this week at the Howard theater, and the packed houses of Monday and Tuesday attest the popularity of this beautiful star. Two talking short subjects of unusual merit, as well as a Krazy Kat cartoon, also are on the program.

Metropolitan.

"Blockade," a dramatic story of the coast guard service and a daring woman, beautiful as a goddess and as daring as a Viking, who carried her fight into man's domain and beat him. Anna Q. Nilsson, the star, is heard in the picture for the first time since the start of talking pictures.

Rialto.

Olga Chekova, Europe's sensational actress, is making her debut in Atlanta this week in "Moulin Rouge," a colorful drama, playing at the Rialto. The story is laid in Paris and revolves about a favorite actress in the popular Red Mill theater. Actual scenes of Paris and England are to be seen, the picture having been filmed in those cities. As the public's idol whose first love is her work and next to that of her daughter, Chekova presents a fascinating and admirable type of woman. Also on the program is offered a Vitaphone farce, "Bedtime," Pathe News and two other sound novelties.

Loew's Grand.

Today marks the last showings of "Fugitive" at Loew's Grand, the film attraction being the picture of Richard Harding Davis' famous novel, "Exiles." Midge Bellamy and Don Terry have the principal roles in the story of the underworld that carries the action into far-off Africa. There are synchronized comedies and reels of current news events on the program.

Cameo.

The story of the "Lady of the Pavements," showing today and Thursday at the Cameo, is typical of D. W. Griffith. It opens up at the court of Napoleon the Third, with all its pomp and decadent splendor, where a countess conceives the idea of marrying a cabaret girl to the man who had scorned her.

Alamo No. 2.

A cast of screen favorites including Victor McLaglen in the title role and Lois Moran, Eric Foxe, Nick Stuart and Donald Crisp in featured parts, help make "The River Pirate" one of the season's great pictures, according to reviewers who have seen it. This production, which is Fox films' version of Charles Francis Coe's sensational Saturday Evening Post serial, is coming to Alamo No. 2 theater today.

Empire.

"The Singing Fool," with one of the greatest stories ever told on the silver sheet and possessing in addition the magnetic power of Al Jolson, the greatest jazz singer of the age, will be shown at a return engagement of one day only today at the Empire theater, corner Georgia avenue and Crew street.

Ponce de Leon.

The most human personality on the American screen. That is the William Haines of "Excess Baggage," opening at the Ponce de Leon theater. There is no use denying it. Haines as the cheap vaudeville juggler and slack-rope walker of "Excess Baggage" does the very best work of his career. He is interesting, curiously vital, dramatic and alive. From the moment he makes his entrance, proposing to the adorable Josephine Dunn until the moment when high in the roof of the New York theater he prepares to lay down his life to remove an obstacle to her screen success, he holds the attention of his audience. On the stage at today's matinee and tonight will be seen the Boy Scout minstrels.

81 Theater.

"Rarin' to Go," one of the best colored shows on the road today, will be presented at 81 Decatur street, Friday night in a midnight frolic for white people only. The show has attracted unusually large crowds where it has been presented and it was shown to a large audience, of visiting police chiefs Tuesday night, when an official stamp of approval was placed on it.

PARENTS ARE BLAMED FOR 'FLAMING YOUTH'

Chicago, June 4.—(AP)—Wayward parenthood was blamed for the capriciousness of "flaming youth" in most of the responses to a questionnaire distributed by the "diocese of Chicago," official Chicago publication of the Episcopal church, the magazine announced today.

Not that youth was not rebuked for its "flaming," it was but its parents were accused of applying the torch.

Characteristic answers included: "The present age is slightly more insane in many respects, especially in the way mature people act in regard to young people. Parents of today flatter their children, slobber over them and think they are endowed to lead their elders."—Dr. Bernard L. Bell, warden of St. Stephens' college, Columbia university.

"I cannot see the present-day youth is any more frivolous or irresponsible than the youth of my own day. A lot of criticism of youth is levied by the older generation. Still, head master of the Kent school, Kent, Conn. 'The young people I have contact with have clear standards and high ideals. I have more fear for parents than for the children.'—Dr. Charles H. Young, head master of the Howe school, Howe, Ind.

"There is bound to be some recoil from the child's observation of adults' violation of prohibition laws and motor speed and from adults' lack of interest in religion."—Miss Florence Wells, of Grafton, Fond Du Lac, Wis. "I don't find any more frivolity or irresponsibility or shallowness or lawlessness among young people than among their fathers and mothers."—Dr. Frederick C. Grant, president of the Western Theological seminary, Evanston, Ill.

CONFEDERATE VETERANS ASKS COMMUNICATION HEAR. PAT HARRISON INQUIRY AUTHORITY

Open Charlotte Reunion With Admonition To Hold to Tradition.

Charlotte, N. C., June 4.—(AP)—The 33rd reunion of the United Confederate Veterans opened formally here tonight amid a blaze of color, music and oratory and the valiant efforts of thousands of gray-clad patriarchs to resurrect the rebel yell.

Reunion officials estimated late this afternoon that 20,000 visitors were in the city with that number mounting hourly as a steady stream of pilgrims poured in by almost every known means of travel.

On the rostrum tonight at the armory-auditorium, erected especially for the occasion, were Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi; Governor O. Max Gardner, of North Carolina; Mayor George Wilson, of Charlotte, and former Mayor F. M. Redd. A concert by the United States Marine band opened the first reunion program.

Senator Harrison, devoting his address largely to a defense of the southern cause in the War Between the States, told the veterans that the principle for which they had fought was states' rights and not slavery. He called for a rebaptism of the south in that principle and warned against the sacrifice of southern sentiment to industrialism.

"We of the south must never permit southern glories to be forgotten in the maelstrom of industrial strife," said the senator. "We must not allow those principles for which our fathers sacrificed to be supplanted by yielding to the commercial exigencies of the hour."

"Slavery was not the cause of the war," he said. "A bigger question was involved. The south resisted any invasion of the right of states to control their own domestic affairs as a federal compact. And may I be permitted to say that the south needs a rebaptism in that principle."

Governor Gardner described the reconstruction period as "one of the most glorious chapters in the history of the Anglo-Saxon race."

"I have long felt," he said, "that the most serious consequences of the Civil War was not the loss of material wealth nor the appalling loss of life, but was the psychology of despair which resulted from the defeat of the southern armies. It manifested itself in a diminished respect for law and order, in an incapacity to visualize the latent potentialities of the section and its people and in a general exodus from some states to the west and other parts of the country."

"But at this juncture the men and women of the south joined battle with their own doubts and fears. They gathered for a last desperate charge upon the somber battlements of despair."

"The story of the rebuilding of the south forms one of the most glorious chapters of the history of the Anglo-Saxon race, and our victory was essentially a victory of the spirit."

As a preliminary the Confederate Southern Memorial Association opened its 30th convention this afternoon with addresses by Mrs. Jesse J. Yates, C. S. M. A. hostess and state president; Clyde R. Hoey, Shelby, N. C., attorney, and brief greetings by Governor Gordon and others.

Mrs. A. McD. Wilson, of Atlanta, president-general, responded.

The veterans, exuberant and reckless of their own infirmities, devoted the day to incidental festivities, spontaneous parades and reminiscences. Several collapsed from fatigue or excitement during the day and were taken to the emergency hospital, where they might rest undisturbed.

Miss Madeline Daher and Mr. Warner Are Wed at Beautiful Home Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Madeline Daher and Henry Warner, of Philadelphia, Pa., was quietly solemnized at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning at the home of the bride's close friend and maid of honor, Mrs. Morris Brandon, on West Peach Ferry road. Dr. J. Spore Lyons officiated in the presence of a small group of friends of the bride and groom. Quantities of garden flowers in attractive arrangement formed the decorations throughout the lower floor of the home. The improvised altar was arranged on the west porch of the home before a background of large baskets filled with white gladioli and snapdragons and large foliage plants. A note of sentiment was added by the use of the lovely white satin priest-dress which was also used in the wedding of Mrs. Brandon.

Mrs. W. A. Wallace, well known pianist, rendered an interesting program of musical music, including "Oh Promise Me," "All For You," and "One Alone." The wedding march from "Lohengrin" was used as the processional. Mrs. F. W. Williams acted as her sister's matron of honor and wore a gown of dark blue chiffon with but to match. Her shoulder bouquet was of gardenias. Morris Wing acted as his cousin's best man. The exquisite brunette coloring of the bride was accentuated by her wedding ensemble of dark-blue crepe, trimmed with three lighter shades of blue, and worn with a small hat to the bride and groom. The bride wore a gown of deep purple orchids and valley lilies. Following the ceremony, Mrs. Brandon entertained at a wedding breakfast, the table being decorated with quantities of larkspur, snapdragons, roses and delphinium. Placed in the center was the large wedding cake, beautifully embossed in pastel-shaded flowers. Mrs. Brandon received her guests during a gown of blue figured chiffon with small blue straw hat. Her shoulder bouquet was of gardenias and valley lilies. The morning Mr. Warner and his bride left for a wedding party to Tampa, Fla., after which they will make their home at 114 Seminole boulevard, Norwood, Fla., near Philadelphia.

45 CONVICTED, GET 10 DAYS FOR PICKETING

Johnson City, Tenn., June 4.—(AP)—Forty-five of the 52 defendants charged with picketing and violation of court injunctions during the recent Elizabethton textile strike were convicted in chancery court here today. Three received the maximum penalty of 10 days in jail and $50 fines, and others were fined in amounts varying from $10 to $25.

In the decision, ending a joint trial which has been in progress for weeks, Chancellor S. E. Miller ruled that the use of national guardsmen to patrol the two rayon plants closed until recently by the strike was legal and that the guardsmen were properly called as state police. Labor leaders have agitated for an investigation of the use of guardsmen.

The opinion suggested that labor leaders were equally guilty of disorder with the defendants on trial, and held that they were "actual participants" through their connection with events related to the long and violent strike, and the picketing which accompanied it.

ROOSEVELT TELLS GOTHAM BANKERS OF WARM SPRINGS

At the luncheon the governor announced he had appointed Bernard M. Baruch, Robert Goetz and Thomas Cochran, New York financiers, to represent him on a state committee to study Saratoga Springs, N. Y., as a health center. Four others are to be appointed by the legislature.

American Colonists To Meet Friday

At Decatur Club

B. Hornaday, president of the Atlanta Woman's Club. A lovely program of beautiful music will be rendered by Mrs. G. S. Stokes, with a group of songs by Mrs. W. L. Greene and Mrs. R. E. Barry.

Miss Martha DeGolian will give an interpretative dance. Hostesses will be Mrs. John Montgomery, Miss Marjorie McCallan, Mrs. Orrin Kauffman, Mrs. Dan Lyle, Mrs. Arthur Stitt, Mrs. William Lane Randall, Mrs. Felix DeGolian and Mrs. Harold Nicholson.

One of the loveliest of the pre-nuptial parties, complementing Miss Willie Mildred Nevils, whose marriage to Claude Davis Gamble will be an interesting event of this month, was the bridge-supper last evening given by Miss Nellie J. Steinheimer at her home on Sterling street.

Quantities of garden flowers were used in decoration throughout the living room and porch where the game was played. Supper was served at the bridge tables, hand-painted place cards being used. These cards, made by the bride, carried the initials of the bride and groom, and were later served as individual favors. Bridge was played during the evening.

BEAUTY FASHIONS

Annapolis, Md., June 4.—(AP)—Miss Sarah Varn was due to get a kiss from Midshipman Mary Lamar Curry, also of Annapolis, when she presented colors to a regiment of midshipmen at the United States Naval academy today, but due to the needs of the movies, both got two.

Curry, who is commander of the color company, which won honors in competition with all others in his regiment, selected Miss Varn to present them. Navy tradition demands that the commander kiss the presentation girl.

The movies wanted to record it, so the ceremony was gone through with this afternoon and then later in the day the actual presentation was made.

Miss Varn was escorted to the field by high navy officials here for the June week festivities. The color company the seventh, marched to the front of the regiment, led by Curry.

Miss Varn presented the company with the colors and Curry with a kiss. To finish collar and armeyes wide. To finish collar and armeyes wide. To finish collar and armeyes wide.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

WELCOME ROBIN BUMPS HIS HEAD.
By Thornton W. Burgess.

Who wrong of others always thinks From self-examination shrink.

—Old Mother Nature.

Welcome Robin was losing his appetite. He could think of nothing but that stranger he had seen several times. This strange Robin had a curious way of appearing and disappearing, and Welcome Robin was so jealous that he had made up his mind that the next time that stranger appeared he should be taught a lesson he never would forget. Welcome sat close by the nest that Mrs. Robin was building and waited and waited and waited. And while he waited his impatience and his anger grew. But he waited in vain. Not a glimpse of that stranger did he get.

"It's your imagination," declared Mrs. Robin, as she continued the work of building the nest.

"There's no imagination about it," re-torted Welcome Robin. "I've seen that fellow as plainly as I see you."

"I don't know," replied Welcome. "I don't know. I wish I did. If I knew where he was I wouldn't be sitting here, waiting. I would drive that fellow so far that he would never come back. Yes, sir, that is what I would do."

"Hoh," exclaimed Mrs. Robin, and went for some more material. It was then that Welcome Robin changed his position. He flew over to the spot where he had been when he last saw the stranger. Every time he had seen the stranger Welcome Robin had been sitting on this particular branch. He hadn't noticed this, but it was a fact. Now the instant he alighted he saw the stranger. Welcome puffed out his feathers and glared. But he didn't puff out his feathers and he didn't glare any more than did the stranger. Welcome wasted no time. He flew at that stranger in a fury. If he expected to see that stranger turn tail and fly away, he was disappointed. The stranger did nothing of the kind. It was several minutes before Welcome saw that the stranger was willing to meet Welcome Robin half way. He flew straight at Welcome as furiously as Welcome was flying at him.

Bang! Welcome Robin had bumped his head. He didn't know what had happened. He was too confused to know what had happened. All he knew was that he had received a dreadful bump on the head. It had been such a hard bump that he had fallen to the ground, but it had done him no serious harm, and in a few minutes he had quite recovered. Then he looked for that stranger. But the stranger wasn't to be seen.

"I guess I taught that fellow a lesson that time," declared Welcome as he flew over to sit where Mrs. Robin was so busily at work. "What are you talking about?" asked Mrs. Robin, who was beginning to lose patience. "You must be crazy, don't believe we'll see him around again. He certainly hit me an awful blow on the head." But I guess I hit him just as hard."

"What are you talking about?" asked Mrs. Robin, who was beginning to lose patience. "You must be crazy, don't believe we'll see him around again. He certainly hit me an awful blow on the head." But I guess I hit him just as hard."

"Then how did I get such a blow on the head?" demanded Welcome. "Tell me that, if you please. My head aches this very minute."

But this was something that Mrs. Robin couldn't tell him, so she went off to look for some soft, dead grass that she needed in the building of that nest.

The next story: "A Strange Fight."

THE UNKISSED BRIDE

INSTALLMENT XXXIII.

Joy Harrison, living in London and working for Dr. Rex Travers in Harley street, is enabled by a letter from the fiancée, Geoffrey Ford, a well-known novelist, asking to be released from the engagement. Travers, who has been in London for some time, notices that Dr. Travers seems troubled. Toward the end of the day he tells Joy that he has just lost a great deal of money through an unscrupulous solicitor and he will be forced to give up his house in Harley street.

Dr. Travers, a partner, tells Rex that he has just been offered a practice with a comfortable villa in the south of France which he cannot take on, and he suggests that he recommend Rex for it. The only hitch to the plan is that they want a married doctor and Rex is a bachelor. To Dr. Travers' suggestion that he marry and take up the new post, Rex turns a deaf ear.

INSTALLMENT XXXIV.

From the blazer-pocket (as Joy stopped to pick up and shake out these clothes) there rolled out Percival Arthur's customary moustache, full. Some keys, a spare part or so for his model engine, three francs, an English penny, a couple of old-fashioned handkerchiefs rolled into a gray ball, an undeveloped kodak film, a lump of putty (furred with dust and having embedded in it two French postage stamps), a fragment of one crumpled cigarette, a fragment of milk-chocolate and his burning glass. Having attended to these things, Joy returned to the play-box which Percival Arthur had evidently been turning out for something in a hurry to get to put the things back again. "He's been after a book," Joy thought. She tidied and ranged in order the latest Edgar Wallace, "When We Were Very Young," a "Censor," a notebook which told open showing a page in Percival Arthur's arrestingly clear handwriting.

She could not help seeing. "May 14, 1928."

"As it is the day after my birthday, aged fourteen, I have decided to put down carefully, every day, everything that happens to me, and what they all say. Yesterday's party was a turn. Joy and I enjoyed ourselves most."

Hardly clapping it to, Joy thought, "I wish I were dishonorable enough to read the rest of it. But it only goes up to about May the 15th, I expect—late of most diaries." She went on getting some sort of order into the play-box. Under the empty tin for toffee and the half-full glass of suspect anchovies, she found another book.

Its colored cover caught Joy's eyes; for it represented a near-Spanish beauty of a figure not considered enviable, clad in underclothes of a type no longer worn, and lying on a divan. Paper, binding, print, all stamped it as the thing of a suspect as those anchovies. "Where on earth did the child pick up this?"

On the fly-leaf appeared the pencilled name of a man who, who was to go to Newborough next Christmas term.

"And I thought he was nice," murmured the girl, sick at heart for the second time today over a revelation of adolescent male mentality. "Delightful boys could be pitiless about old ladies; the most delightful boys one knew could harbor horrid books."

"And Percival Arthur, who reads Herriek?" "How is one to understand the creature?" Depressed, Joy sat down on the edge of Percival Arthur's bed under the rolled-up net of mosquito curtains. She glanced gingerly at a page, turned another, and presently threw back her brown head to laugh joyously over the harmless, the incredibly silly account of adventures on "the glamorous London Stage," connected by some writer who obviously had never been disillusioned by meeting a member of that same profession.

"Why, almost any other girl on the stage and off—would give their ears" (Joy read) "to get Lord Partington to do for them what he would be only too overjoyed to do for Florizan."

"Really?" "All the same, to sell a book like this with a picture like that on the cover for all the Johns and Percival Arthurs, poor lambs, to imagine they are getting hold of something fruitfully improper, is getting money under false pretenses from diners."

She wondered what Rex would say. She also wondered if even Rex, when he was at Newborough, had hankered after fiction's forbidden fruit? . . . Grown-up or growing-up men were alike difficult to understand, thought the young girl. "The Adventures of Florizan," however, did not look particularly well in a play-box.

"I shall suppress this," she decided, turning to another page; at the sound of a foot on the stairs, she started up and stood, ready to defy the room's possessor with "Well, if you will leave your things all over the place."

It was only Mary to ask her—"Please, Madam, will the doctor be in for tea?"

"I forgot to ask him. How stupid of me—" "It's gone five, Madam. Will you have your tea in now?" "Yes, please, I shall have to ring up the Miss Simipetts and tell them that Mr. Percival Arthur won't be with them this afternoon—unless I find when I telephone that he has gone straight there, and that he's there now."

There had, however, been no sign of the doctor's nephew at Mon Repos. There continued to be no sign of the boy. Disappeared. Vanished. Nobody had seen him.

"Well, he said he would be missing," thought Joy that evening as she dressed. "I wonder where he's hiding."

She was worried, however, when it came to it. It was that night, 12 o'clock, past midnight, and still no sign of Percival Arthur Fitzroy.

"I don't for a moment suppose anything's happened," Rex Travers remarked, with cheerfulness through which sounded a note that turned Joy's eyes quickly up to his, "but I've just rung up to let the police know. They're sending a description on to the various offices along the coast. Just so that they can be on the lookout."

Joy repeated: "The police . . . ?" "Yes; but not that I imagine—" "Quite. Pretty sure that he's some tumbled escapee of the young devil's," Rex Travers agreed casually, fitting a cigarette into the amber mouthpiece.

"He'll have to be shown that this won't do."

"If anything had happened," Joy persisted, "you'd know by now. The police would have let you know, wouldn't they?"

"Can't possibly tell with these fellows over here," said Travers tersely (and in that one phrase sounded all the Islanders' well-nigh inevitable distrust of the methods of "foreigners.") He corrected himself hastily, "Oh, yes, they'd let me know, of course. They'll ring up; I mean they would ring up."

From midnight two people at Mon Repos became, as it were, one ear—and that fastened to the telephone. Nobody rang up. No police station; no agent; no hotel.

Silent hours seemed to elapse before the bell rang. And then it was only the elder Miss Simipetts wanting to know if there were any news of dear Little Percival Arthur?

Presently Travers, who had been out, came into the drawing room. Joy sat with a magazine on her lap, and Roy, shut-eyed but prick-eared, lying on the rug against her feet.

"Better go to bed, Joy, hadn't you? I've sent the maids off. It's getting late. You'll be worn out."

"I can't go to bed until we hear," "You'll hear directly there is anything. No use both of us waiting up. You go to bed."

She thought, but not unconsciously, "Mussolini-complex again? He wants to have something he can order about. Still, if it makes him feel any better."

She got up. "I shan't go to sleep," she said, turning at the door of her room. She wore a pale taffeta with pink skirts that matched her string of pale amber. "You will tell me—the minute that anything—"

Quarter Million People Expected To See Epsom Derby Today

DON BRENNAN DEFEATS LOOKOUTS, 7-2

EPSOM DERBY TODAY DRAWS STRONG FIELD

Three Colts Will Go to Post as Favorites in Historic Race.

By P. I. Lipsey.
Epsom Downs, England, June 4.—(AP)—Three handsome colts, joint favorites for honors in the ancient and world-renowned Epsom Derby to be run tomorrow, stepped into their stables tonight ridden by the "lits" and "buts" of turfdom.

Cragador, Hunter's Moon and Mr. Jinks are the trio of racing aristocrats, which despite elements of uncertainty in each, picked by the experts and public alike as having the best chances of leading the gallant field of Britain's choicest three-year-olds home in the arduous historic meet.

LORD ASTOR'S HOPE
Lord Astor's hopes of winning his first Derby after placing second five times rests confidently on Cragador. This bay colt, however, became ill during his Derby training, which interfered with his conditioning for the classic event. Although the stout-hearted race appeared quite recovered in recent trials, his trouble may collect its penalty before the mile-and-a-half, up-and-down-hill struggle is completed.

Hunter's Moon, Lord Derby's ace entry, has shown speed to burn but suffered some shins within a week of the supreme event of the turf year, yet he is heavily backed with his two chief rivals at about 8 to 1.

STRONG BACKING.
Mr. Jinks received his strongest backing after beating Cragador by a neck in the 2,000-guineas race at Newmarket, later in the season. However, he bowed to Hunter's Moon in the Newmarket stakes, a longer route. The experts say he is a sound and honest horse but they also recall that his sire, Tetraeme, was a Derby favorite only to collapse as he turned into the final half mile dash down hill. Bar behind the favored trio is the Derby dark horse, Posterity, owned by Mrs. Corlette Glorney, of the United States—the only woman seeking the $75,000 stake this year. While breeders say Mrs. Glorney's entry has Derby pedigree second to none, the colt was quoted at 33 to 1 today with no takers.

Gordon Selfridge and A. K. Macomber are the only other Americans sending out horses in quest of the world's most famous horse race. Selfridge has entered P. D. Q., while The Carthaginian will carry the colors of Macomber. Both are quoted at long odds, being given only an outside chance to win.

QUARTER MILLION FANS.
With the promise of fair weather, more than one-quarter of a million people are expected to crowd their way around the beautiful Epsom course to see the 30 or less colts go to the post. Post time is about 3 p. m. (10 a. m. eastern daylight saving time). Late scratches may reduce the starting field to 25.

The track, baked by a month's sunshine, will perhaps be over-ripe, a feature said to favor Mr. Jinks, as his two chief rivals prefer softer running surfaces. In an effort to soften up the course, Epsom fire engines have been pouring water on the 12 furlong horseshoe-shaped course for several days with good results.

The day of days in England will have all the colorful and dramatic features of past runnings of the feature with the exception that King George will be absent from the royal box.

Canzonieri Wins Over Fernandez
BY EDWARD J. NEIL.
New York, June 4.—(AP)—Tony Canzonieri, smiling little fighting master, turned loose all his punching artistry tonight on Ignacio Fernandez, courageous Filipino featherweight, to open the New York outdoor season with an overwhelming victory at the Queensboro stadium.

About 14,000 of the faithful packed the stadium to see Canzonieri, incked since losing the featherweight championship, make a punching bag of the brown boy, who only two weeks ago knocked out another New York idol, Al Singer. There were no knock-downs, but Canzonieri smothered the dangerous Filipino with punches and won every round.

For four rounds, Fernandez, a puzzling craftsman who loves to punch, made a light of it. From the fifth on it was just a question of the brown boy's ability to absorb Tony's slashing attack.

Fernandez did so, but he stumbled to his corner, crouching at the end of the second, fifth, sixth and eighth rounds. Canzonieri's added weight since he quit the featherweight division seemed to have strengthened him considerably. He sealed 129 3-4 pounds to Fernandez's 128.

In a 10-round semi-final, Peter Mack, 134, of Jersey City, fought a draw with Jackie Pilkington, 137 1-2, of New York.

Ed Danforth

"And is Miller Huggins getting any sympathy these days?" Clark Griffith asked, grinning broadly. "He is not. He is raving; and he wants to trade ball players with anybody, but nobody in the league is giving him a thing."

They tell me that the other day the Washington manager wrote a business letter to Huggins and added a postscript: "Hope you finish last." But it may be just another of those reports.

The American league, I take it, is enjoying the discomfiture of the Yankees to the limit. The Huggins have been on top for so long that any defection this year cannot be considered unfair. No manager will laugh at the hard luck of another, yet hard luck and Huggins somehow seem like a comedy team.

The Yankees' depression, however temporary it might prove to be, is a genuine tonic for the younger loop. And of course Clark Griffith is not averse to seeing some other manager have the hard luck that once was his own.

Joe Engel's Idea.
Just supposing the Washington Senators buy the Crackers—and of course there is "absolutely nothing to it"—some consideration must be given Joe Engel, personable scout, as a factor in bringing the deal about.

Joe has been scouting through the south for years and it has been his big idea to have his bosses buy Atlanta as a farm.

Joe was sitting in at the council in which Griffith is "discussing the Chattanooga ball club" with Spiller. And if the deal falls through, Joe will be one disappointed man.

Reigh Count.
Considerable has been written and ventured by critics on this side of the water over the failure of Reigh Count, the 1928 Kentucky Derby winner that Mr. and Mrs. John D. Herz have been campaigning in England.

Turf writers have ventured every sort of alibi for the American champion of last year, but none seemed to carry conviction.

Robert M. Lee, writing in the Chicago Tribune from Newmarket, gives the fairest, most authoritative opinion as to why Reigh Count could run in America and was nothing but a weak galloper in England. At the same time the article gives an interesting insight into racing conditions over there.

He says in part:

In America horses are trained to run on smooth level tracks. Horses are by instinct familiar with rails to guide them. And the smoothness of the track makes it easy for them to get the slightest edge of impediment. Let us drop in a nice illustration used by Mr. Mitchell.

"When a young man becomes a sprinter on a cinder track," said Mr. Mitchell, "he dismisses from his mind everything that may disturb his burst of speed. He knows the cinder patch is level and that his destination is clearly before him. Therefore, he runs with his head thrown back, free to use all his energy for speed. Now suppose he was suddenly entered in a race over a cross country course over a plowed field with ruts and patches. He would have a changed method of running."

English racing is over a natural turf. The ground is never prepared in any way, no rolling or surfacing. The horse's fore foot may strike a hummock a foot high or a hole six inches deep. There is nothing to reassure a horse, who, when he starts, has been built up over reliable and even surfaces surrounded by a guiding rail. Now, add to this turf the fact that there are no markings and no fences in the white so familiar to the American, and that with the running uphill and downhill and past strange turnings, there is enough to disturb a cross country athlete, to say nothing of a horse.

Reigh Count has been four years in training for the American tracks. In the last six months an attempt was made to undo everything that has been done in the previous four years. In Reigh Count's four years of life every movement has been under intensive human direction. In so far as it has been possible to form the mental processes of a horse, if such a thing may be a matter for conjecture, every schooling has been supplied him. In America he has been an athlete on a cinder track, his head in the air, and not at all disturbed by the running uphill and downhill and past strange turnings. There is no one in England who wonders at Reigh Count's inability to cope with such a situation overnight. You might as well expect him to pilot an airplane.

Senator Officials, Who May Buy Crackers, See Them Play

Atlanta baseball circles were stirred Tuesday by the arrival of Clark Griffith, president of the Washington baseball club, and E. B. Eynon, Jr., secretary, who are in Atlanta considering the purchase of the Cracker ball club. R. J. Spiller, president of the Crackers, after heatedly denying any prospective deal, was in conference with them practically all Tuesday. They are pictured above as they appeared at the game Tuesday. Left to right: R. J. Spiller, Clark Griffith, Joe Engel, Senator scout, and Eddie Eynon. Below is Garland Buckeye, the huge left-hander who reported Tuesday from Toledo. ### Griffith Sees Camp Here for Senators

By Ed Danforth.
Making Atlanta a permanent spring training camp for the Washington American league club is one of the ideas that Clark Griffith entertains as he considers buying the Atlanta Southern league franchise.

"There is no harm in saying that if the deal is concluded and we buy the Atlanta franchise," he explained, "that I plan to have the Senators train here next spring."

"It would solve a lot of our problems. I believe the climate in Atlanta is ideally suited to putting our men in condition for the campaign. It may be that Florida is too hot after all, and the sudden change from mid-summer temperatures to cold damp weather we have in April when the season opens hurts us."

"I recall Atlanta as having fine weather, not too hot, for conditioning a club and I think it would be a great idea to have the Senators train here with the Crackers."

"Mr. Spiller has a great plant here and Atlanta is an ideal city for a training camp site. The men would be better satisfied here than in a small town somewhere farther south."

The sudden change from hot weather to cold spoiled the fine condition of his veteran pitchers this year, Griffith said, and cost the Senators many ball games right at the start.

"I believe by July we will be the best club in the league," he added.

pool and restaurant establishment known as "The Fountain of Youth."

The deal involves all of the Spiller enterprises in and near the baseball park.

"I will consider nothing less," Mr. Griffith says.

INDEPENDENT OPERATION.
The deal, if concluded, will mean that the owner of the Washington American league baseball club will take over the Crackers' operations.

"I will operate it independently of the Washington club," Mr. Griffith says. "It will not be run in the nature of a farm for worn-out players. It will be a hustling Class A ball club, out there to win the pennant or know why. Atlanta deserves nothing less and we could not afford to buy at the price and have less than a one-two-three ball club. We would start in the minute the transfer papers are signed to put the club up in the race."

Mr. Griffith was delighted with the book showing of the property. He made that clear. He likes the park, the grandstand, and the club as a whole. He likes, above all, the city. He used to train his Washington club here.

Mr. Griffith also is interested in becoming, for the first time in his life, the owner of a swimming pool. He already is thinking of making a skating rink of it in winter.

Mr. Griffith was very frank about his intentions—delightfully frank. He stated that through Joe Engel, his chief scout, he had been negotiating off and on for more than a year for the Atlanta club. The bargaining reached a stage Monday that he and his secretary, Mr. Eynon, caught a train for Atlanta and arrived Tuesday morning.

CONFERENCE THIS MORNING.
"We came direct," explained Mr. Griffith. "We did not come by way of Chattanooga. I might add that we are not after the Chattanooga ball club. We are vitally interested in buying the Atlanta ball club and have no other end in view in coming here."

"We are going over the detailed figures on attendance, on concessions sales, on players held on the active list and on option and balancing them against the quoted price. I cannot say what that price is."

"We expect to go farther into the matter Wednesday and be ready for another conference with Mr. Spiller at 11 o'clock. The deal promises to be difficult to close, even if we can agree on terms. I would be pleasantly surprised if we could conclude the deal Wednesday."

Mr. Spiller was reached at his home Tuesday night and he said that he had quoted a price to the Washington people in writing and that he was waiting for their answer at 11 o'clock Wednesday.

He reiterated his statements made on such occasions previously: That he would not let anyone else buy the Crackers, and that he would not let anything materialize short of it.

NEW PITCHER STARS IN BOX AND AT PLATE

Hits Home Run in Debut at Spiller's as Mates Win.

By Ralph McGill.
Don Brennan, making his debut as a Cracker pitcher before a home audience, scattered his opponents' hits and in the seventh, with the score tied, hit a home run with two men on base to help win the ball game from the Lookouts, 7 to 2.

He did that on the ball room at Spiller field Tuesday afternoon. It was equivalent to a young debutant breaking in at her debut with a proposal from the Prince of Wales.

The audience got up and whooped itself red in the face over the accomplishment of Don Brennan. He is a sizable sort of person and he put all his weight into that home run knock, a ball that went clean under the scoreboard in center field with the frantic Cleve Barrett in pursuit.

It was a rather subdued audience for a time. There was a lot of talk going round about the Crackers being sold. Clark Griffith, the Old Fox from Washington; Joe Engel, Senator scout, and Eddie Eynon, secretary, were sitting down in a box with R. J. Spiller. Nap Rucker was sitting with them. He scouts for Brooklyn.

SLIGHTLY AWED.
The homefolks were slightly awed by the presence of such notables. They kept peering over there at the major leaguers who were thinking of expending some cold, hard cash for the Cracker ball club. For a time they didn't seem to notice the ball game.

While the Crackers were wondering what the new owners would do about wages and the like if they did become new owners, the Lookouts went right ahead and banged in a couple of tallies. The Lookouts didn't care. They were relieved to learn they weren't going to get a lot of new losses.

Old Art Decatur was out there throwing the baseball for the Lookouts. He was throwing nothing much but curves and curves, say what you will, are tough to hit.

A COMEBACK.
The Crackers started a comeback in the second. Nick Cullup came up red behind the ears. He once had a tris with Clark Griffith and wasn't kept. He set about making him sorry. He banged out a single that first time up. Three times during the afternoon Nick Cullup whacked the bases on a sacrifice, and tallied on a sacrifice by Jack Sheehan.

Nap Rucker smiled placidly as the Castilian catcher hit during the afternoon. Rucker has him lined up for your Uncle Wilbert Robinson. Lopez got three hits, one a double. He knocked in a couple of runs. He kept looking over at Joe Engel. Finally Joe Engel, who has been appointed a touring police chief by one of the visiting firemen, threatened to have Nap Rucker ejected from the park if he mentioned it again.

GOOD HITTING.
Dick Burrus was hitting the baseball right smart all afternoon. He met it hard every time he came up. In the sixth he got his first hit of the day. Nick Cullup got his third. Al Lopez came right up there with his double and scored Burrus to tie the score.

And then came the bloody seventh. Bob Parkin opened it with a single to right field. Jack Sheehan punched one to center field.

Don Brennan, who had received a hand on his shoulder all afternoon, was waving his stick. When he connected the ball sailed far over the head of Cleve Barrett. He chased it. The ball bounded along as if it were glad to be running. It headed for the scoreboard.

Meanwhile this young Mr. Brennan was running. He is a big man but he isn't fast. He can't get over ground. He was tearing along when the baseball saw the hole under the scoreboard and leaped into it. It was a home run. Three runs were over the platter.

TWO MORE.
The Crackers kept right on. Dick Burrus scored Frank Haley, who was

Pirates Beat Phils To Gain Half Game

Chicago Downs New York, 10-9; Cubs Win, 9-5—Reds Tripped, 4-1.

Chicago, June 4.—The Cubs shook off their batting lethargy here today, and although they failed by one hit to match the Giant total of 14, they sent enough of their drives over the fences to win the final game of the series from the New York team by 10 to 9.

What Hubby Said To Helen Filkey Meant Nothing

Chicago, June 4.—(P)—What Beach Van Huseen Warren said to Mrs. Beach Van Huseen Warren after their marriage a few weeks ago about her quitting track athletics apparently doesn't go.

Anyhow, Mrs. Warren, the former Helen Filkey, Olympic champion hurdler, now chooses to run. She is out twice a week, it was learned today, leaving over the hurdles in practice for competition in major events of the track season.

Ga-Ala League

FITZGERY BEATS LINDALE. Carrollton, Va., June 4.—It was not much better for Lindale today and Carrollton won 9 to 6. In the eighth inning, Lindale's first three up stung, filling the bases and Fitzgery hit a home run and caused the third to roll out weak to second.

He gave up six hits, fanned 10 and picked two runners off of first. Fitzgery led the hitting for the champs with three out of five. Grogans hit a home run in the first inning, got a hit in the second and caused the third to roll out weak to second.

Valdes relieved Washington at the beginning of the seventh, after Washington gave up five hits and three runs in the sixth. Verner got a three-base hit.

Verner and Bullock struck triples and singles out of four and three tries, respectively.

CEADARS TAKE LEAD. Gadsden, Ala., June 4.—Four pitching and equally good fielding on the part of both clubs marked a wild affair here Tuesday in which Cedarvale finally came out on top, 15-13.

Four moundmen were used by Gadsden and three by Cedarvale. Chivers, who went in as a pinch hitter in the sixth and pitched the final frame, got credit for the victory.

It was a see-saw affair that gave the fans plenty of thrills but not much ball. The Cedarvale going back into the league lead as a result.

The third game of the series, which was now even, will be played here Friday. Cedarvale leads 100 203 015-15. Cedarvale 100 203 015-15.

Maureen Orcutt Holds Her Lead

Philadelphia, June 4.—(United Press)—Maureen Orcutt, metropolitan and eastern women's golf champion, maintained her ivy-stroke lead in defense of the latter title today as the second 18 holes were completed at the Aronimink Golf Club. She had an 84 for a total of 162.

Although she failed to continue the terrific pace that netted her a record breaking 78 Monday, Miss Orcutt played steadily today and seemed headed for her second straight eastern crown. Her putting, however, was off today. Had she done better on the greens she might have bettered 80 again.

Edith Hicks, New York girl, hit her stride today and scored an 80, three under par. Added to 87 of the day before she had 167, and is the only other player besides Miss Orcutt to be under 170.

Edith Hicks, Reading, Pa., who trailed Miss Orcutt Monday, slipped into sixth place; she had 168, one over par. She had a 92 for 175.

Other scores follow: Mrs. Helen B. Stetson, former eastern and national champion (Pitts., 172-173); Georgiana Bishop, Brookline, 172-173; Mrs. D. C. Hurd, former British and national champion, 173-174; Mrs. Leo Redeman, Glen Oaks, 174-174; and Mrs. Courtney Smith, New Jersey champion 174-174.

Former Red Sox Owner Is Dead

New York, June 4.—(P)—Harry H. Frazee, who as owner of the Boston Red Sox sold Babe Ruth to the Yankees in 1920 for the record price of $137,000, died at his Park Avenue home today after an illness of several months.

Frazee bought the Red Sox, then world champions, after the club was sold by the 1919 season for $500,000, and sold them seven years later for $1,250,000. He was widely known in the theatrical world and had produced a number of successful shows.

Several months ago Frazee went to Europe to try to regain his health, and on his return he was found to be suffering from cancer of the throat. This morning he became critically ill. He was in a coma all afternoon and died without rallying.

Major James J. Walker, long a close personal friend, was at his bedside when he expired. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Margaret Frazee, and a son, Harry Jr.

Mr. Frazee was born in Peoria, Ill. He began his theatrical career at the age of 16 as an agent, and in 1902 he produced his first play, "The Flare," which was a success.

Subsequent shows included "Madame Sherry," "Ready Money," "Fine Feathers," "A Pair of Socks," "Nothing But the Truth," and "No, No, Nanette."

He built the Cort theater in Chicago in 1907 and the Longacre theater here in 1913.

Huguenin Win Final Game, 4-2, To Take Series From Sox—A's Lose.

New York, June 4.—(P)—What about the Phillies—are they going anywhere?

The wise men of the east get a big laugh out of that question. Anything better than sixth place for the Phillies' club seems out of the question to the baseball thinkers looking on from this distance.

The club itself has set its goal as the first division. Shotton, an old baseball head who produces convertible ideas in good quantity, is not bothered with pennant giddiness and truly will be a happy man if he finishes higher than fifth.

If the hard thumping of his great slugger, Lefty O'Doul, means anything, the Phillies will gain their objective and Shotton will land a big stock of joy to scatter around in Philly town next fall.

O'Doul, who went to Philadelphia because of the good trading judgment of his new boss, recognizes few National leaguers who are hitting the ball harder and oftener than he this season.

When Shotton took over the team last year he looked around to see what had kept the outfit in the cellar seven times since 1918 and below sixth place for the same period.

He scrapped much useless material which he promptly replaced with a train load of fresh man power from the bushes.

The infield, outfield and catching staff he constructed have been good enough to make the first division under the burden of a minor league pitching staff.

When Manager Brant dug up a hurling crew of corresponding strength he will have a contender and the old "Just Another Ball Club" sign which has become a Philadelphia landmark can come down.

Yanks Run Streak To Four Straight

Huguenin Win Final Game, 4-2, To Take Series From Sox—A's Lose.

New York, June 4.—The Yankees made it four straight over the White Sox here today, winning the final game of the series by 4 to 2. The White Sox again hit feebly, and were mastered by Henry Johnson, who gave up only four strikes. The offensive total of Chicago for the four-game series was four runs and 18 hits.

Red Faber also pitched a smart game, but gave up four hits and two runs in the opening inning. Gene Robertson made three more hits, giving him a record of six out of his last seven times at bat.
